VOTERS TODAY TO DECIDE FATE OF RIVERS PROGRAM FOR SOCIAL SECURITY AND STATE TAX EQUALIZATION

ANOTHER HEARING ON TARIFF PLANNED

Governor Graves Confident of Success Then, Pointing Out Order Based on Old Data.

Further hearings will be held by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the new rate structure on textile products from southern territory, the commission announced at Washington yesterday after it had refused the pleas of southeastern textile men led by Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, for a suspension of the rates which become effective today.

Governor Graves expressed delight at the order reopening the case and declared "that is all we hoped to do, get it reopened." Graves is chairman of the nine-state Southeastern Governors' Freight Rate Conference of which Governor Rivers is also a central figure.

At the same time, proponents of the lower freight rates in southeastern territory saw another victory in the transmission by President Roosevelt to congress yesterday of a TVA report suggesting establishment of a uniform principle of making interterritorial freight rates as an aid to commercial development of the valley and the nation as a whole.

"The survey showed the present regional freight rate structures or boundaries constitute barriers against the free flow of commerce which are hampering and restricting the normal development of the nation as a whole," it was reported by Chairman Arthur E. Morgan, of TVA.

INCREASED RATES EFFECTIVE TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission refused today to suspend a new rate structure on textile products from southern territory, but agreed to reopen the case for further hearings.

The new rate structure, which the Interstate Commerce Commission said will mean a 20 per cent increase on products from Georgia and Alabama, will take effect tomorrow.

The textile association petitioned for a suspension on the ground that the industry would be "seriously crippled" by the higher rates. It contended it would upset a long existing relationship between the industry and rail carriers.

Railroads and competing mills in other territories opposed the petition, arguing the new charges would be fair and would remove many difficulties which exist under the present rate structure.

The commission's order contained only this brief statement: "The commission today denied petitions for suspension of rates on cotton, woolen and knitting textile products filed to become effective June 8, 1937, as the result of the findings and orders in the

Boy Knocked 63 Feet In Bicycle-Auto Crash

Knocked 63 feet from his bicycle by an automobile police said was traveling 60 miles an hour in the 100 block of Moreland avenue last night. Thomas J. Rogers, 15, of 88 Moreland avenue, N. E., was admitted to Grady hospital in a serious condition suffering from a probable fracture of the skull, severe lacerations and loss of several teeth.

The car, according to police, was driven by Phillips Kantor, 22, of 784 Frederica street, N. E. He was charged with reckless driving and speeding at 60 miles an hour. Patrolmen J. D. Timmie and W. E. Petty, who investigated the accident, said the car skidded nearly 100 feet before coming to a stop.

Mother Poisoned, Newborn Babe Unharmed

Mrs. John Tidwell, 24-year-old mother, who died yesterday in Grady hospital of a poison dose, is shown here with her 4-year-old son, Willie.

This is the infant born at Grady hospital 24 hours after Mrs. Tidwell swallowed poison at her home and 24 hours before effects of the poison proved fatal to the mother. The baby, shown here in an incubator, was said by doctors to have suffered no ill effects.

GENERAL STRIKE AT LANSING ENDS

President Refuses Union Request To Intervene in Steel Walkout of 73,000.

By the Associated Press.
The workingmen's city-wide holiday at Lansing, Mich., outstanding in yesterday's labor developments, ended with claims of union victory last night, and the participants were ordered to return to work today.

Eight pickets whose arrest provoked the demonstration were freed by the intervention of Governor Frank Murphy, but not before all automobile plants in Lansing suspended operations and virtually all downtown stores closed.

Union leaders referred to it as a "day of labor victory" and claimed 1,200 new members as a result of the holiday. Authorities insisted, however, that the pickets will stand trial tomorrow.

Steel Pled Denied.
President Roosevelt referred a union plea for intervention in the deadlocked steel strike to Secretary Perkins and the National Labor Relations Board yesterday, but the board announced later it had not basis for action at present.

Husband Blames Poor Health for Suicide of Atlanta Matron.

Mrs. John Tidwell, a 24-year-old mother who believed her burdens were too much to bear, died yesterday afternoon in Grady hospital of a poison dose less than 24 hours after she had given birth to her third child.

The thin-faced wife of six years died soon after she had whispered to her mother, Mrs. M. F. Emmett, of Buford, "Mama—I did it—it was too much to stand."

The new arrival, a plump little daughter, lay in her cot in the children's ward as Mrs. Tidwell murmured to her husband:

"Take care of the children. Take them to live with your mother." Tidwell said yesterday that his wife had made two previous attempts to end her life. About two years ago, he declared, she slashed her throat.

"She must have done it because she was in bad health," he said. "She had been despondent."

Mrs. Tidwell took the poison, police reported, Saturday afternoon at her home, 665 Tunnel street.

Her other children are a boy, Willie, 4, and Melton Harvey, 2. The infant was named Ruby June.

Tidwell said he would take the children to live with his mother, Mrs. W. S. Tidwell, of 863 Bradley avenue.

Mrs. Tidwell is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Emmett.

COUNTY EMPLOYEES VOTED PAY RAISE IN SECRET ORDER

Commission Takes Action in Star Chamber Session Giving Salary Adjustment to 17 on Pay Roll; Increases Total $5,000.

CLOSED MEETINGS POPULAR RECENTLY

Executive Conferences in Vogue for Discussion of Public Fund Expenditures, Relief Matters.

Adoption of the secret executive session vogue by the Fulton county commission was revealed yesterday when it was learned salary adjustments for 17 lower pay bracket county employees had been made last Wednesday.

The raises, totaling approximately $5,000 annually, and ranging from $15 to $25 a month each, were unanimously agreed to by the board members in a star chamber proceeding during the regular monthly meeting of the commissioners last Wednesday afternoon, it was said.

Appropriations Voted.
Following the regular meeting, members of the finance committee held an unannounced meeting and agreed to grant $6,333 for a joint survey of the city and county governments and to contribute $1,500 for purchasing land for a city park in the rear of the Capitol Avenue school.

In recent months several other executive sessions have been held by the board to discuss matters pertaining to the Fulton county department of public welfare and other public projects.

The salary adjustments, which were made to low pay bracket employees whose salaries were cut in economy moves during the depression, were granted after commissioners had announced last January and subsequently that there would be no salary increases during 1937 as the county must be operated within the budget.

They said anticipated revenues would not warrant general raises, so therefore, none would be granted.

Raises granted are all within the 1937 county budget, it was revealed, and granting of these does not mean other salary increases will be made.

Adjustments Revealed.
Adjustments were as follows: M. C. Bishop, recently appointed contact man for the county, from $175 to $225 with an additional $25 per month granted for wear and tear on his personal automobile.

In the public works department H. W. Forrester was increased from $100 per month to $125; Mrs.

ORION, Ala., June 7.—(AP)—Twenty-three persons tonight suffered from varied degrees of burns and injuries received today in the terrific collision of a Greyhound bus and a 1 1/2-ton truck. One man died in the flaming wreckage.

The two vehicles met on the brink of a hill, three miles north of here, amid terrified screams of the 29 bus passengers. A gasoline tank burst and in a matter of minutes the stream-lined transport was a smoldering shambles.

The truck, its motor torn loose and hurled 50 feet, piled up in a ditch. Maurice G. Parks, of Greenville, Miss., one of two men in the truck, was hurled by the impact into the blazing wreck. His body, torch-like, finally came to rest in the highway. He was dead.

A 15-year-old Miami, Fla., youth, Herman Crider, received praise of a hero. Witnesses said he jumped feet first through the windshield, opening a quick exit, then assisted others in escaping through that hole, windows and an emergency door. He was given

Fire Department Squad Called in Vain Effort To Save Star.

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—(AP)—Jean Harlow, the young actress millions knew as the screen's "platinum blonde," died today in a hospital bed, a victim of uremic poisoning.

William Powell, the actor who had been her constant companion, sat beside the actress' mother.

He comforted her as best he could as the 26-year-old star slipped from several hours of unconsciousness into death.

When Dr. C. E. Fishbaugh indicated with a nod Miss Harlow was dead, Powell rushed sobbing from the room, an arm flung across his face.

As he joined Warner Baxter in a nearby room, his muffled sobs could be heard through the quiet corridors of the hospital.

For an hour those at the bedside knew there was no hope. Uremic poisoning spread to cerebral oedema. That is a swelling of the brain.

Two doctors worked over the slim form. Two blood transfusions were given. Dr. Fishbaugh found her respiration weakening. He called the fire department in-hospital squad. She was placed in an oxygen tent, but showed no signs of rallying.

"It's so hopeless," the doctor said.

There were five in the hospital room—Mrs. Jean Bello, the mother; Powell, two doctors, Fishbaugh and his assistant, Dr. L. S. Chap-

63,267 MAY VOTE IN FULTON, DEKALB

Heavy Ballot Predicted; Leaders Seek Passage of 4 Local Amendments.

List of Fulton, DeKalb Voting Places May Be Found in Page 13

Fulton and DeKalb county voters today will cast their votes on Governor Rivers' New Deal program and will ballot on four constitutional amendments having local application, in 90 ballot boxes.

Approximately 63,267 are eligible to vote. It was predicted a relatively heavy vote will be recorded.

Polls in both counties will open and close at the same time, officials said yesterday. Urban ballot boxes will receive votes from 7 a. m. until 6 p. m. central time (8 a. m. until 7 p. m. daylight saving time), and rural precincts will be open from 8 a. m. until 3 p. m. (9 a. m. until 4 p. m. daylight saving time).

Under the law the polls must open on central time, but election officials yesterday stressed the fact that daylight time is listed.

Soliciting of votes and distribution of literature near polling places will be permitted, it was said. A city ordinance banning

REPEAL QUESTION, PROVIDING OPTION, ALSO ON BALLOT

Governor and Talmadge Make Final Appeals for and Against Ratification of 26 Measures Sent to People by Assembly.

HEAVY VOTE TALLY BEING ANTICIPATED

Fair, Warm Weather Is Expected to Swell Total; Levies Reorganization Would Aid 'Little Man.'

The voters of Georgia today will decide on prohibition repeal and 26 constitutional amendments Governor Rivers holds vital to his program. Indications were for fair and warm weather pretty generally all over the state and a sizable majority of the 515,000 registered voters were expected to cast their ballots.

Although the formal campaign ended Saturday, there were last-minute skirmishes for votes yesterday, Governor Rivers addressing two meetings in northeast Georgia and former Governor Talmadge, who has headed the opposition to the amendments, made his final appeal against the amendments in a radio speech from Atlanta.

Rivers Asks Approval.
Governor Rivers has asked the approval of all 26 amendments but has remained silent on prohibition. Talmadge has called for defeat of the amendments and rejection of the repeal proposal.

Two major phases of Governor Rivers' New Deal program for Georgia—social security benefits, and tax reform—hinge on the outcome of today's vote on the amendments.

Legislative machinery has been set up for the start of payments July 1 of old age pensions, aid to the needy blind, dependent children and, as the ballot says—"other welfare benefits"—should the amendments be adopted today.

Rivers announced some months ago he would call an extra session of the legislature about Thanksgiving if the other amendment—one to permit classification of property for taxation at varying rates—is approved.

Talmadge Stand.
Talmadge insisted that 18 of the 26 amendments provide for higher taxes, and the others "for a lot of patronage jobs."

Rivers appealed for their adoption to "give Georgia the benefits of the federal social security program, to relieve the little home owner of taxes," and to permit a reorganization of the tax system.

If a majority of Georgians vote for "legalization and control" of liquor, the state will be on a "local option" prohibition basis; elections must be called in each county before liquor can be sold there, and sale must be in unbroken packages, with no drinking on the premises.

Today's election on the amendments is provided for in a special

A man identified as C. E. Bennett, of 20 Haygood avenue, was fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when acetylene torch equipment he was using to do some welding work in the rear of the H. Smith Bottling Company at 228 Decatur street exploded.

According to John Smith, manager of the firm, Bennett had asked for work yesterday morning and was welding an empty steel drum when the blast occurred. Smith said Bennett was not using a steel helmet customary in most instances when welding.

Firemen summoned found the victim collapsed at the scene of the explosion with his face badly mashed by a portion of the torch which had been blown off.

He was pronounced dead by Grady hospital internes who answered an ambulance call.

Firemen and officials of the company said they believed either a faulty hose line which connected the torch with the gas cylinder or sparks from the torch lighted some other inflammable fuel to cause the blast.

ALBANY, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—The state convention of Georgia Lions voted unanimously in the morning session here today to revise the present state set-up, dividing District 18, which is the official designation of the state, into three districts—District 18-A, northern section of the state; District 18-B, southeastern section; and District 18-C, southwestern section.

The plan provides for three district governors, with district secretaries, and one state secretary, and a joint convention, rotating from each district annually.

The new districts with the names of all cities included in each district:

Northern Section District 18-A—Athens, Atlanta, Blairsville, Canton, Carrollton, Cartersville, Chatsworth, Union Point, Clarksville, Clayton, Dahlonega, Dade county, Decatur, Ellijay, Gainesville, Greensboro, Lafayette, Lavonia and Toccoa.

Southwestern Section, District 18-B—Adrian, Augusta, Vidalia, Waycross, Douglas, Dublin, Hazlehurst, Ocala, Sandersville, Savannah, Soperton, Sparta, Tifton and Ashburn.

Southwestern Section, District 18-C—Albany, Arlington, Bainbridge, Buena Vista, Camilla, Shellman, Vienna, Smithville, West Point, Talbotton, Cordelia, Columbus, Dawson, Donaldsonville, Edison, Forsyth, LaGrange, Leary, Leesburg, Lumpkin, Macon and Moultrie.

Nominations, credentials, constitution and by-laws and resolutions committees were appointed in the morning meeting. Speakers on the morning program included Henry T. McIntosh, editor of the Albany Herald, H. L. Barker, of Carrollton, deputy district governor, Immediate Past District Governor H. A. Stallings, of Waycross, and Lieutenant Governor Dr. Jackson, of the Soperton Club.

Tomorrow, the three district governors will be elected, as well as the state secretary. The convention voted for the district governors to hire their own secretaries and appoint them at will.

About 230 Lions are registered for the convention.

GROWING—TO MEET THE NEED
FOR MORE AND BETTER SERVICE

Southern Bell spent eighteen million, eight hundred and twenty-seven thousand dollars during 1936 for improvements and replacements in telephone "plant" in order to meet the public's service needs in nine Southern states.

This money was required for such items as land and buildings, switchboard and other equipment, subscriber telephone equipment, local and long distance lines. The estimate for 1937 is that nearly twenty-three million dollars will be needed.

The increased demand for service in 1936 resulted in a net gain of 83,000 telephones. Local calls increased 9.8 per cent over 1935, and toll and long distance messages gained 15.9 per cent, the greatest number of telephone calls in the Company's history.

Better business was reflected also by the addition of 1800 employes, bringing this total to almost 19,000 by the end of the year. The payroll was over twenty-one million dollars.

Taxes, too, increased to the highest sum in the Company's history, when seven million, three hundred and twenty-six thousand dollars was paid to federal, state, county and municipal agencies. This was an average of 63.8 cents per telephone per month, or $7.66 per telephone for the year.

Calls were handled efficiently—service criticisms decreased eight per cent and voluntary commendations of the service increased 32 per cent, despite a new high average of 8.62 originating calls per telephone per day.

Such facts as these show how well telephone folks are accomplishing their determination to give the most service and the best, at the least possible cost.

JOHN C. HALLMAN, ATLANTA PIONEER, TO BE BURIED TODAY

Last Rites Will Be Held at Spring Hill
Chapel.

Funeral services for John C. Hallman, a leader in the development of Atlanta since 1886 who died Sunday night, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill chapel with the Rev. Dr. Louis D. Newton and the Rev. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller officiating.

Burial will be in West View cemetery under the direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

Officers and directors of the Georgia Power Company and the Atlanta Title and Trust Company, organizations in which Mr. Hallman was the oldest director, will serve as active pallbearers and honorary escort.

Preston S. Arkwright, H. M. Atkinson, W. C. Bradley, M. H. H. Duvall, Andrew C. Irwin, John M. Graham, Frank Hawkins, Robert F. Maddox, E. P. McBurney, F. J. Paxton, J. B. Robinson, J. Leonard Rountree, Mel R. Wilkinson, E. A. Yates, W. E. Mitchell, E. L. Butler, C. A. Collier, C. E. Flanigan, W. H. Wright, I. S. Mitchell Jr., S. A. Dewley, B. T. Simpson, L. G. Mann, F. R. Mitchell and C. Wigand will act as pallbearers from the power company.

The following officers and directors of the Atlanta Title and Trust Company will serve as honorary escort: William J. Davis, J. H. Porter, Harry M. Paschall, George A. Campbell, C. D. Brewer, E. O. Kellum, William J. Davis Jr., E. T. Bradley, Hanson W. Jones, F. P. Calhoun, Fred W. Cole, James S. Floyd, George Winship, R. W. Courts Jr. and Harold Hirsch.

Mr. Hallman was 93 years old and resided at 499 West Peachtree street. He retired from active business affairs in 1917.

He was a veteran of the War Between the States, having enlisted in the Confederate Army when he was 17 years old. He was a native of Shelby, N. C., but had resided in Atlanta for more than 50 years.

He aided in establishing the Atlanta Bank and Savings Company, now the Atlanta Title and Trust Company, with one of the only surviving members of the group which served as the institution's original directorate.

AWARDS APPROVED IN TORNADO-FIRE

State Board Upholds Indemnity of $40,000.

The state Commission of Industrial Relations yesterday upheld awards totaling approximately $40,000 in the Cooper Plants factory fire following the tornado at Gainesville early in 1935.

The award, originally made by Commissioner Hal M. Stanley, was appealed to the full board by the employers, who contended the fire and tornado comprised "an act of God" and for which they were not responsible. Survivors of the fire and members of the families of 40 persons killed in the blaze contended the casualties were due to negligence.

The board upheld Commissioner Stanley in a divided opinion. Commissioner Harry E. Munroe, employees' representative on the board, joined Mr. Stanley in upholding the award, while Commissioner Arlie D. Tucker, employers' representative, dissented.

CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Social security will be discussed by Lamar Murdough, director of public welfare for Georgia, at the Wednesday meeting of the Fulton County Democratic Woman's Club. The session will open at 4:30 o'clock in the Georgia ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel.

A business session at 3:30 o'clock will precede the general meetings. A half-hour entertainment program will follow the sessions.

Mrs. Max E. Land, president, will preside. Yesterday she urged all women residents of Fulton county to attend the meeting.

Sightseeing Banned At U. S. Penitentiary

Sight-seeing tours at the federal penitentiary are definitely out, it was revealed yesterday by Warden F. G. Zerbst. In the future visitors will be admitted only to visit definite prisoners and after their credentials have been approved.

The prohibition of prison tours is effective at all federal penitentiaries, Warden Zerbst declared, and is the result of an order issued by the United States Bureau of Prisons.

"The tour permission has been abused in the past," the warden said. "We have even had classes of young school children brought out to sight-see. We do not believe this is good for either the prisoners or the children."

KIWANIS TO TELL BOYS OF CAMP SITE

Clubmen Furnish Mountain
City Cabin for Recreation in All Its Branches.

Kiwanians today will tell the boys of Hillside Cottages of the club's investment in these future citizens, a splendidly equipped cabin at Mountain City, marking the beginning of a program that will provide summer camping facilities with all the trimmings for the boys for the next 20 years.

The cabin was dedicated Saturday night by approximately 75 Kiwanians and members of their families, who drove in a motorcade to the mountains.

The cabin is provided with electric lights, spring water pumped in, sewerage and other modern facilities. More than 20 boys may be provided for at a time.

There the youths will find provided swimming, horseback riding, tennis, baseball and instruction in wood craft.

Participating in the dedicatory program were Claude S. Bennett, chairman of the Hillside Cottage committee of 1936, and the originator of the cabin idea; Dr. R. M. Eubanks, chairman of the committee of 1937; Jesse Draper, past president of the club; David L. (Red) Barron, L. F. Rickman, sheriff of Rabun county; R. L. (Shorty) Doyal, camp supervisor, and Dr. J. C. Wardlaw, of the University Extension school.

The Kiwanis' visit to the Hillside Cottages today is the annual trip to the home.

REPAIRS SOUGHT ON COLLIER ROAD

Residents Circulating 16 Petitions to County Board.

Sixteen petitions asking the Fulton County Board of Commissioners to approve paving or repairing of Collier road from the Seaboard Airline railroad westward to Howell Mill road are now being circulated in the Collier road section.

The condition of the road and the sharp curves constitute a real danger to pedestrians and motorists, the petition sets forth. The part of the road on which the paving or repairs is sought is nine-tenths of a mile long.

More than 1,200 persons have already signed the petition.

ATLANTAN GRADUATES FROM JOHNS HOPKINS

William A. Bailey Jr., Atlanta, and three other Georgians were members of the graduating class receiving diplomas yesterday from Johns Hopkins University in exercises held at the Lyric theater in Baltimore. Bailey was awarded the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Other Georgians in the class are John S. Leigh, Savannah, bachelor of engineering; David Manning Wolfe, Augusta, certificate in public health, and Alexander Graham Little Jr., Valdosta, doctor of medicine.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside church, New York, was the commencement speaker.

MATE'S 'LAST KISS' PROVES FOCAL POINT IN BATHTUB KILLING

Husband Finds Wife Dying, Shot Through Chest; Held by Police.

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—(P)—A husband's last kiss, impressed upon the lips of his wife as she lay dying in the bathtub of their home, became a focal point in the investigation of her death today.

Police held the husband, 31-year-old Basil L. Giles, on suspicion although investigators said they believed his wife shot herself.

Officers examined scrapings from Giles' lips to determine if they bore traces of rouge he would have collected in the "last kiss."

Giles frantically called the Willshire police station: "I believe my wife has committed suicide. Come on over."

Arriving at the home, police found Mrs. Louella Giles, 29, dying in the bathtub. She had been shot in the chest. Pinned to the shower curtain with a charred match was a note, reading: "Turn on the radio. I won't be hurt. Don't look behind the curtain. You're right; I'm not fit to live."

Police chemists examined the match used to fasten the note to the curtain. The match bore a scarlet stain.

"If the stain proves to be blood, then we will have a real mystery," police said.

$25,000 GIFT IS MADE TO MERCER UNIVERSITY
MACON, Ga., June 7.—(P)—A gift of $25,000 to Mercer University for equipment in biology, chemistry and physics will be made that institution if a building to house the equipment is provided.

This announcement was made today by Dr. Spright Dowell, president, to the Mercer trustees.

It was a gift from the general education board, he said, and added: "The opportunity is one so concrete and so compelling that we cannot turn it down."

HITLER AIDE SHOWN DUCE'S SEA POWER

De Fuehrer Honors Mussolini and Ciano With Highest Decorations.

NAPLES, Italy, June 7.—(P)—Premier Mussolini, having paraded his army for Germany's war minister, put the navy on display today for the visiting diplomat, Marshal Werner von Blomberg.

Il Duce smiled as he stood proudly on the bridge of the cruiser Emanuele Filiberto Duca D'Aosta and pointed out phases of the sham battle staged by more than 70 submarines and 60 surface ships.

Von Blomberg was delighted. He got an idea of what naval strength Italy could provide—as a friend or as an enemy. He had seen Mussolini's land forces last week.

In Berlin, Reichsfuehrer Hitler conferred on Mussolini and his foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, the grand cross of the order of the German eagle, Germany's highest decoration.

(Hitler said the award was "a sign of my friendship, in honor of his (Mussolini's) great merits and in furtherance of the hearty understanding between Italy and the Reich.")

Von Blomberg's visit, said the authoritative writer, Virginio Gayda, brought "perfection" of a simple understanding already existing between the two countries.

'T. R.' Required 5 Years To Smash Rockefeller Trust Into Small Units

Keepers of Tiny Stores Testified They Were Run Out of Business for Dealing With Independent Refiners—'Standard Gave Away Kerosene.'

This is the 13th chapter in a series of daily installments which are an authentic chronicle of Mr. Rockefeller's life and career.

By JOHN K. WINKLER.
(Copyright 1937, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

In 1906 President Roosevelt unleashed upon Standard Oil his two chief trust-busters, Kellogg, of Minnesota, and Hadley, of Missouri.

Suit was started in the federal court in Missouri. The government demanded the dissolution of the oil trust. Special Prosecutors Kellogg and Hadley charged that John D. Rockefeller and six associates had illegally seized the second greatest mineral product of the country and were converting it into mountainous private fortunes.

The epochal action consumed five years and cast light into dark places. Eleven million words of testimony were taken. The record gave a clear picture of the great Rockefeller monopoly and its methods.

Keepers of tiny stores placed their hands upon the Bible and swore their business had been snuffed out because they had dared deal with independent oil refiners. They asserted that Standard Oil, at times, had even given away kerosene to stifle competition. Mighty railroad magnates testified: "We yielded to the Standard because we could not oppose it and live."

J. D. Directed Battle.
Years earlier John D. had retired, theoretically, and was sedulous hunting health and longevity. He had, however, retained the presidency of his gargantuan monopoly. In this crisis his voice came almost hourly, over private wires into 26 boardrooms.

On May 13, 1911, he sat in his study at Pocantico awaiting word of the decision of the United States supreme court. The momentous decision came in the early afternoon.

The supreme court found the seven individual defendants and their corporate machine "guilty as charged." The seven were the trust directors: John and William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Oliver H. Payne, Charles Pratt, H. H. Rogers, John D. Archbold. The corporate machine was the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and 33 subsidiaries.

Orders Dissolution.
Standard Oil, the supreme court asserted, had consummated "unfair practice" contracts by the thousands. It had "restrained trade," had blackjacked the railroads into favorable discrimination. It was swollen with inordinate profits.

"There is but one way by which this frightful organization may make restitution," said the court, in effect. "It must resolve itself into its original units and restore free competition in the oil industry."

The court ordered that its dissolution decree go into effect by November 15, 1911.

The radical dissolution decree seemingly affected this great fortune.

J. P. Morgan the elder gruffly remarked: "How in hell is any court going to compel a man to compete with himself?" Each Standard subsidiary dominated its field, strategically.

Morgan, indeed everyone in Wall Street, watched eagerly to see how John D. would make seeming obedience to the supreme law of the land—yet keep his vast organization intact and functioning smoothly.

(To Be Continued.)

Tiny Airplanes To Fly Sunday For Endurance

Tiny airplanes with real motors will zoom over Candler field next Sunday in Atlanta's first "miniature air show" for gasoline models.

The Atlanta Gas Model Club will sponsor the event, and entries are expected from over the southeastern states. Planes may be entered only by their builders and commercial models are barred, according to Jack Coppage, club president.

Prizes, consisting of gas model kits and supplies, will be offered for the longest sustained flights. About 25 entries by Atlantans are expected, and an equal number is forecast for out-of-town participants.

Flights will get under way at 9 a. m. o'clock, and the public is invited to attend with no admission charges.

DOHERTY SPARED COURT QUIZZING

Judge Rules Ill Oil Magnate Need Not Appear in Suit.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(P)—The "precarious" physical condition of Henry L. Doherty, oil financier, will save him from the ordeal of questioning in a Cities Service Corporation stockholders' action.

United States District Judge John W. Clancy ruled late today that questions must be submitted to Doherty in written form, after the financier's physicians had submitted affidavits in a hearing on an order to show cause obtained by his attorneys.

The show cause order earlier had caused immediate postponement of a hearing today before Special Master J. Rhodes O'Reilly, who had previously been asked to conduct a hearing at Doherty's bedside.

Today's hearing was postponed to June 15.

GOEBBELS BERATES AUSTRIAN CARDINAL

Denies 10 Priests Arrested After Sunday's Street-Fighting in Munich.

BERLIN, June 7.—(P)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' Der Angriff today bitterly berated Roman Catholic Cardinal In'tzer of Vienna, and denied that 10 priests were arrested after yesterday's street-fighting in Munich.

(Hitler Youth Movement followers demonstrated yesterday outside Roman Catholic churches while the church followers celebrated the "Sunday of youth." Priests led church-goers through streets and tried to prevent a clash, but fighting broke out and 10 priests were reported arrested.)

The official Nazi organ, aroused by Cardinal In'tzer's speech of protest against trials of priests on charges of immorality, described his utterances as a "provocative attempt to inflame public opinion against Germanism in Austria."

A day's continuance and said the case would be called for trial again at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

ASK ABOUT OUR "CHANGE-OVER" PRICE

THOUSANDS said that tires could not stand the terrific grind. They said cars had been built with much greater speed, turns in the track had been repaved with granite-like surface, yet Wilbur Shaw drove to victory on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires setting a new record of 113.58 miles per hour on one of the hottest days in the history of the Indianapolis track.

Here is stamina—here is dependability—here is performance that is proof of safety. 500 miles over the blistering hot brick track, at temperatures of more than 100°. Speeds of 130, 140, and even 150 were attained on the straightaways. Think of the terrific impact on these tires as the cars roared into the treacherous turns and out again. Tons of force straining, pulling, and twisting inside the tire, yet not one cord loosened, not one tread separated from the cord body—all because Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process, successfully counteracted the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life.

Why have Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires been on all the winning cars at Indianapolis for the past eighteen years? Why did every one of the thirty-three drivers in this greatest of all racing events choose and buy Firestone Tires? Race drivers make it their business to know how tires are made and they know that Firestone Tires are built with the Firestone patented construction features of Gum-Dipping and Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the Tread. They know that because of these extra features Firestone Tires run up to 28° cooler and give greatest blowout protection. In fact, these men will not risk their lives or chances of victory on any other tire.

You will never drive your car at these record-breaking speeds, but for the safety of yourself and family you need the safest, strongest and most dependable tires. Come in today. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—the safest tires that money can buy.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON THIN WORN TIRES

No car owner is going to risk his life and the lives of his family knowingly on thin worn tires. Yet thousands of car owners are taking chances every day.

Choose the tires that champions buy. Race drivers know from experience that their lives depend on the safety of their tires. They will not drive at high speeds on any other than Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. You, too, need the same protection. Come in today and equip your car with the safest tires ever built.

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

Listen to the Voice of Firestone, Monday evenings over Nationwide N. B. C. Red Network

Above is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are more liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Above is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in and see by actual demonstration.

TODAY'S ELECTION

Georgia voters are called on today to decide the fate of 26 proposed amendments to the state constitution. On the same ballot is a referendum to determine whether the state shall substitute control of the liquor traffic for the prohibition laws.

Of the 26 amendments only 10 are of statewide interest. The remaining 16 apply strictly to local situations and require vote of all the people only because of Georgia's archaic law.

Of the 10 state-wide amendments two are, in effect, companion measures to others, making the issues to be decided only eight, exclusive of the prohibition repeal amendment.

The state-wide amendments are designed, collectively, to put into force that "New Deal" for Georgia which is synonymous with the platform upon which Governor Rivers won an overwhelming majority vote in the Democratic primary last year. This program was adopted by the Democratic convention at Macon, with 6,000 delegates, as the party platform and was endorsed for a third time when the legislature provided for the off-year election of today.

The state-wide proposals include provisions for pensions to the aged poor, to the destitute blind and to poor children. Approval of this amendment means that the state may receive its share of the federal funds now expended, in other states, for these purposes. Georgia now pays taxes for these activities of the federal government but can receive no benefits until the requisite amendments are approved. It is estimated the amount of federal money which will come to the state by adoption of this social security program will total three and a half million dollars a year.

Amendments three and four on the list provide for the tax exemption of owner-occupied homes, whether they be farms or urban residences, up to $2,000, and on personal property, exclusive of automobiles, up to $300. Many states have tried this plan and beneficial results in the encouragement of home ownership and in lifting some of the tax burden from the shoulders of the little man, financially, have followed.

It is proposed, in the fifth amendment, to classify property for taxation. This, it is contended, will permit owners of "intangibles," such as stocks, bonds, interest-bearing notes, bank deposits and similar property, to return them for taxation at a reasonable rate. Under the present law the tax rate, which is the same for all types of property, makes taxation of these securities practical confiscation. The classification proposal is intended to make all property owners bear a fair share of the tax burden and to ease the load which now rests, almost exclusively, on real estate.

The next amendment provides that widows of Confederate veterans who married prior to 1920 may receive pensions. At present they are eligible only if they married prior to 1881. This would add to the state pension rolls approximately 500 widows and increase the pension cost to the state about $180,000 a year.

The final state-wide amendments are designed to guard against any repetition of Georgia's experience when the last Governor seized the financial power of the state without legislative authority and enforced his mandates with the bayonets of the national guard.

One provides that the legislature may convene itself on petition of three-fifths of its membership and the other provides that, in event of disqualification of justices of the supreme court to pass upon a case, the vacancies shall be filled by the qualified justices, instead of by the Governor, as the law now provides.

There are other amendments of special interest to Fulton and DeKalb counties. One would make of Fulton county a senatorial district to itself. Another provides that Atlanta may refinance its deficit in order to operate on a cash basis, with the consequent large savings to the taxpayers. Still another provides that DeKalb county may levy special taxes in certain districts for the supplying of fire protection and other services. This is of particular interest to the Druid Hills area, outside of the city limits of Decatur.

The amendment permitting increase of the county-wide school tax in Fulton from 1 to 1.2 mills is designed to provide badly needed revenue for the Fulton county school system. The referendum on prohibition repeal is not an amendment. It is designed merely to gain an expression of the people of the state on a problem of vital importance.

It is not a question of liquor or no liquor. There is more liquor being sold in Georgia now than ever before in the state's history.

It is simply a question of whether the liquor trade in Georgia shall remain in the hands of criminals or bootleggers, or be placed in the hands of the state law enforcement authorities. Such a course will bring far better control of liquor than exists at present. In addition, it will transfer a large amount of badly needed revenue from the coffers of the criminal underworld to the treasury of the state.

DEATH IN HITLER'S HANDS

The reported arrest of 10 more German Catholic priests by the Nazi government, following upon the execution of a youth who claimed American citizenship, centers world attention once again upon a practice that reveals, more poignantly than any other, the reign of terror which exists under dictator rule in Europe today.

The citizenship of the youth whose head was severed by the ax last week is not important. Regardless of his technical nationality, if he lived in Germany he should have obeyed German law—as a resident alien in America is required to obey American law.

The crime perpetrated by German law lies in the secrecy of his trial and execution. No one save his accusers knew anything of his plight until after he had been convicted and sentenced to death. His execution itself was not publicly announced until it was an accomplished fact.

Whether or not the trials of the accused churchmen will be public is not yet known. Precedent indicates, however, they will face their accusers in secret tribunals. It is probable that the first the world learns of their fate will be announcement of the imposition of sentence.

It was out of such conditions the French revolution sprang. It was from similar outrages against the primary principles of justice that the wrath of Russia received the fuel that ultimately consumed the Romanoffs.

Civilized men and women, in and out of Germany, are revolted at this reversion to medieval government barbarity. The day is coming as surely as the sunrise when decency, outraged too often, will purge the German nation of those who thus befoul her temples of justice.

JOHN C. HALLMAN.

The death of John C. Hallman brings to a close a career so closely linked with the growth of Atlanta that its record reads like a history of the rejuvenation of the city from the ashes of war to the proud position it holds today.

Mr. Hallman, a native of North Carolina, came to Atlanta in 1888. He realized at that time that the city, though still struggling back from the ravages of war, was inevitably destined to become the center of industry, finance and commerce for this section.

Since that day until his retirement from active business in 1917, he was one of the vital sparks of that spirit that has made the city a municipal synonym for progress. His counsel and conservative foresight were responsible for many of the wisest business decisions made by those leading organizations with which he was affiliated.

Of late years he has been largely confined to his home. Yet, to the many who visited him there, he was a source of constant inspiration.

His passing leaves a vacancy in the roster of Atlanta's pioneers and an empty place in the hearts of those who marched side by side with him through the years.

STROLLING THROUGH HISTORY

The College of William and Mary, at Williamsburg, Va., has announced a special summer session in "visualized history" which provides one of the rarest opportunities conceivable for a better understanding of those foundations of the nation which were built out of the sturdy independence of the pioneers.

One hundred invited guests, chiefly educators and their families, will spend the summer months at the college and will visit the scenes which have been restored to their original colonial or Revolutionary appearance through joint action of John D. Rockefeller Jr., the national government and the College of William and Mary.

The opportunity to see, in the exact reproduction of their original form, such places as the old Governor's Palace, the House of Burgesses, Raleigh Tavern and other buildings will make American history a living thing, and not a mere printed record on the pages of textbooks.

To walk on the battlefields of Yorktown, to visit colonial residences on the James river, and to breathe the atmosphere of the American struggle for independence, will instill new love of country in the hearts of men and women who enjoy this privilege, an inspiration which they will carry back to their classrooms as the leaven for a rededication to Americanism by their students.

Similar results will follow the visits of between 200,000 and 300,000 regular vacationists expected at Williamsburg during the summer.

Grover Whalen thinks the New York World Fair will top the coronation. What's it going to do—marry the United States Treasury?

REPRISALS AS A FACTOR IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

(From the Birmingham News)

Germany says its honor is satisfied now that its warships have attacked the Spanish government port of Almeria, killing some 19 persons, including five women and a child. The score is even, Germany says, for the Spanish bomb dropped on the Nazi battleship Deutschland.

Thus Germany places itself in the school of revenge. There is no turning of the other cheek for Germany, no suffering of insults for the sake of peace, no toleration of taunts. Germany's is the chip-on-the-shoulder attitude. Its policy is that of an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. It is determined to do its part to fulfill the old teaching that those who take up the sword shall perish by the sword. Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith Hitler.

But this attitude, like so many attitudes on the part of Germany under Nazi rule, is not the way of peace. No permanent peace was ever built on fear, and fear is the only good to be gained through retaliations of the sort that Germany has visited upon loyalist Spain. This is a truth that Germany apparently did not learn in the World War. More and more it begins to look as if the national faults that played their part in driving Germany into the late war are still operative. Germany has not yet found the pathways of peace. It still clings to the folly of believing that the only way to have peace with a nation is to keep it afraid of you. Such a policy has never had any other ending than war.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

SALVAGE WASHINGTON, June 7.—All that President Roosevelt's so-called revival of the supreme court issue amounts to is simply this:

Senate Leader Joe Robinson has been authorized to put the six-judge bill on the auction block in the senate cloakroom and to sell it for the best possible compromise.

What he can get, if anything substantial, is debatable. Even staunch friends of the six-judge bill will whisper in your ear that they are licked by at least three or four votes. The opposition claims more, and seems to have more.

Neither side is inclined to argue much. The destination of the bill probably will be the senate "table," a legislative limbo where legislation is consigned in lieu of the waste-basket. But it, in addition, some unobjectionable features of the program (creation of a supreme court proctor, enlargement of the lower courts, etc.) can be whipped into shape along with some corrections in supreme court procedure, this "compromise" may be passed. That any new justices can be added to the court is extremely doubtful.

It just boils down to Mr. Roosevelt's desire to get "something" without tearing his party apart. It is only a question of salvaging (with the accent on the first syllable).

LURE. Those who are watching Robinson work in the cloakroom note that he seems to be playing one point heavily. He is not unmindful of the vanity of some of the milder opposition senators who could use the personal credit of sponsoring an acceptable compromise.

The compromise must come from the opposition because it is in control of the situation, and the man whose name goes on the compromise as author may rate a footnote in history. At least, the temptation for fame is a considerable factor and the opposition leaders are worried.

This angle casts the only doubt on the outcome.

COMMON SENSE. The opposition is shouting threats of filibuster, but privately planning exactly opposite tactics. When and if the bill is called up, they will move to lay it on the table.

This parliamentary maneuver is perfect because the motion is not debatable. A vote must be taken on it immediately without any talk whatsoever. If the opposition has sufficient votes to put it over, that ends the whole business. The bill will be buried officially and finally.

Both sides want to avoid debate for an unquestionably good reason. Example: In Indiana, Minton is for, Van Nuys against; in Texas, Sheppard is for, Connally against; in South Carolina, Byrnes is for, Smith against. Debate would cut right down the middle of the Democratic party in these and other states, leaving needless bitterness from which the party might not be able to recover before the next congressional election.

A few of Mr. R.'s senatorial supporters are so convinced that tabling offers the best way out, they may develop a severe cold and confine themselves to bed when the vote comes.

Note: Presidential pals at the capitol feel Mr. R. waited too long before dickered for what he could get. His steam is gone. The court has outsmarted him by decisions which make court-packing seem unnecessary (or else Mr. R. won a triumphal victory without packing, depending on the way you look at it). However, congressional advisers have been unable to make Mr. R. see it that way. They have reason to believe he will go on the air shortly and tell the people that the senate is preventing him from carrying on his program.

PRIDE-TEST. The Germans are very secretive about it, but are making good use of their proving ground in Spain. They post sentries around everything German in the Franco army. Even members of General Franco's staff are not permitted ready access.

But those who have penetrated the sentries have learned several interesting things. Example: German anti-aircraft guns have been proved most efficient, while the light German tank (about which the general staff was so proud) has been the biggest disappointment. This tank was found too light to withstand even infantry fire and was so speedy it outdistanced its own infantry. Thus detaching itself from its support. The Germans, after finding this tank unsatisfactory, have developed a slower tank, with heavier armor, only to find it is almost a reproduction of the French tank.

Hitler is changing his technical personnel frequently on the Spanish front in order to give war training to as many as possible.

PROGRAM. That conference of House leaders with the President on the legislative program was significant mostly for what was not said. Court packing was mentioned only casually. The farm bill and the sugar bill were not mentioned at all. The omission could hardly have been unintentional.

Leaders do not waste time with non-essentials when they lock the door and get down to real business.

SILHOUETTES

There's lots of fun to be had each day
As you stroll the streets on your business way,
But the funniest thing of all, I'll say,
Is the guy who carries his own ash tray.

It's a Fact,
I Saw Him.
I've been trying to figure it out ever since.
I saw him, the other evening.
Strolling along a quiet street, smoking a cigaret, and carrying in his left hand an ash tray into which he flicked the ashes from his smoke.

Why on earth?
Opportunity
For Budding Genius.

Announcement is received from the Bureau of New Plays, 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York City, of a new prize contest for college playwrights.

There are six prizes of $500 each for the authors of the six best plays submitted in the competition. If the winners show sufficient promise for the future and need further financial assistance, these awards may be increased to scholarships of $1,250 or fellowships of $1,500 to $2,500. The judges retain the option of reducing or increasing the number of awards according to the merit of the material submitted.

Only undergraduates or those who have attended any American or Canadian university or college since September 1, 1931, are eligible. And all plays submitted must carry written recommendation by the head of the English or drama department of the college attended. Each play must be full length, original, unpublished and unproduced by any professional theater.

It seems there is real opportunity still for the youthful would-be playwright.

And further inducement lies in the fact that the Bureau of New Plays is sponsored by seven of the major motion picture companies.

The Coming Kiddie Revue.

Within the next few days the annual Kiddie Revue will begin its week of performances at Loew's Grand theater.

These annual events, you know, are for the benefit of the milk fund of the Jewish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. It is, surely, unnecessary to tell any Atlanta of the great work being done at that institution in straightening the deformed bones and providing handicapped chance in life for the youngsters crippled by disease.

It should, likewise, be unnecessary to point out what an important role good milk plays in the diet of a child fighting back to perfect health, or seeking the strength required before necessary operations may be safely performed.

There is something emotionally appealing in the fitness of these Kiddie Revues as benefits for such a cause.

The participants are children,

WHAT GUERNICA ESCAPED.

NEW YORK—Guernica, Amore-bieta, Lemaona, Almira, "open town" b o m b e d, bombarded, burned, machine-gunned. "So this is what modern war has become," say many. Nothing of the sort. At all these places scores and hundreds of inhabitants have, miraculously enough, survived untouched. But these towns were not gassed. Abyssinians have a clearer notion of what modern warfare has become. Major Lefebure, who directed some of the British gas-attacks on the western front in 1918-1918, has told us that even the gases employed then—there are worse ones now—could reduce the population of towns "to a condition of fierce agony within a few minutes."

Volume 2 of the official British "History of the War" states that the gases of 1916 could only cause "a sensory irritation so great as to make a man drop unconscious, though immediate death apparently did not result," furthermore "that trained troops were wiped out by effects of such overwhelming rapidity that the casualty had no chance of attempting to leave his ground for aid." Major Lefebure adds that fiercely irritating blendings were available "which compel the removal of masks."

This latter type is being perfected now. A whiff of that stuff on the outside of your mask, on the outside, mind, causes you to vomit your heart out. You can't keep on a mask when you are sick, so you remove it. When you remove it, you inhale a dose that kills you within two minutes, but two minutes of "supreme agony."

That is what a civilization has come to which stands in the token of a religion of brotherly love! Aren't we just pagans? And would we not do better in dropping the pretense of being Christian nations?

HOW TO KILL A CHURCH.

The New York Times reports from Coblenz in Germany that the state's attorney prosecuting through the Rhine land in the case of immorality charges against monks, revealed that the trials might continue for years as new arrests are made almost daily. A special corps of prosecutors from the ministry of justice in Berlin and the secret political police established headquarters in Coblenz in the fall of 1935 and have been working incessantly.

As the secret political police and the prosecuting attorneys contend they can go on with the trials indefinitely, perhaps Germany's whole monastic system will eventually be liquidated. "The state would thus rid itself," says the Times-Dispatch, "of the concordat-protected monastery schools, which played a major role on the Rhine."

In that last sentence lies the secret, the power of the church is to be broken. So the clergy is covered with ignominy first. At least the Bolsheviks fight religion openly. The Nazis, who are always shouting about honor, and whose leader-ranks are notorious for immorality, use this cowardly method. Yet no matter how it is done, the point is that Christianity is to be uprooted from the hearts and life of the German people.

RUMORS OF CIVIL WAR.

It is said that many tourists are abstaining from going abroad to France because of the probability of a civil war breaking out in that country. These rumors, it is in a position to say, originate in Germany. There is no force strong enough in France to start an uprising a la Franco, against a government which holds power by virtue of the expressed will of the overwhelming majority of the French people, to whom the army is loyal and which has just concluded a treaty for six months between capital and labor. Paris is as safe to visit as New York.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Picked up a boy the other morning on his way to school—the last of school—and was asking him what he was going to do this summer. Said he didn't have any plans. I asked him if he expected to get in some swimming. No, he couldn't go in swimming because he had a chronic ear ailment. The family lived in an apartment and he couldn't have a garden, which he would like to try his hand on. He just didn't have anything planned at all for the summer. He wanted to know if I had a suggestion.

I had just been writing something about a plan of the Masons to try to get the boys of Georgia to read and memorize the Proverbs of the Bible. A thought occurred to me. "Why don't you read the Bible through this summer?" I asked him. "All the Bible?" he asked. "Sure, you could easily read the entire 66 books of the Bible within three months and have all the time left you would need for any other work or recreation," I told him. And I went on to give him my experience, just at his age; of reading the Bible through in three months. "All right," he said, "I'll just take that for my summer's special assignment."

Now, what I want to suggest in the camp today is the possibility of getting some other boys and girls to join this fine laid in reading the Bible through, from Genesis to Revelation, during June, July and August. All of you who will do it, send me your names and addresses and I will publish them later on. This will be a fine way to invest a part of your summer's vacation. The boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have some other definite work can easily find the time within these three months to read the Bible through. And we will call it our Summer Bible Club. Who will be the next to join?

They Can't Agree on the Source of Mutton If One Thinks It Means Poultry

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Two men, having purchased adjoining tracts of farm land, meet one morning to discuss the boundary line separating their properties.

Neither is angry, suspicious or ill-natured, yet their voices are soon raised; their faces are flushed; and they are on the point of blows.

Fortunately, they discover the reason of their failure to agree. One of them is a Frenchman who understands no German, and the other a German who understands no French. They have been using different languages.

You will say that no such absurdity could happen, yet it does happen every day and it causes half of all our arguments. The significance and value of language lies in the fact that many of us agree that certain sounds shall have certain meanings. It is like a secret code, whose meaning is hidden from foreigners, and it is useful to us only so long as we agree on the meaning of each combination of sounds.

If Mr. A. and Mr. B. use the same word or phrase, and it means one thing to Mr. A. and a quite different thing to Mr. B., they may argue till doomsday without approaching an agreement. They are simply speaking different languages.

Another prolific cause of argument is the practice of discussing different things in the belief that we are discussing the same thing. You have heard the old story of two country gentlemen who sat on a porch in the gloaming and listened to the little sounds of evening. One of them heard the faint far-off sound of the village choir singing a hymn. The other heard the crickets in the grass. "That music is sweet," said the first.

"Yes," said the other, "and I'm told they do it with their hind legs."

There was material for endless argument, a quarrel or a fight, for there was no hope of agreement while one thought of people and the other of insects.

How often, in the midst of a heated discussion, you see one disputant regain his poise and hear him say: "Oh, I thought you meant—"

Argument, at best, is the silliest of human occupations, and it attains the ultimate in absurdity when the parties to it are arguing about different things.

The first step in argument should be to make certain that both parties understand what the argument is about. The second should be to define the terms used, so that both may use the same language. And when that is done, there won't be anything left to argue about.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Ah, take the cash and let the credit go,
Nor heed the rumble of a distant drum."
Omar's advice was based on the fact that there is no avoiding the approach of the distant drum of death to which he had reference. But southerners, as they develop their natural resources, have no excuse for failing to heed another kind of distant drum. When they take the cash and let the credit go they are guilty of a destruction as stupid as it is unpatriotic. Human nature being what it is, there will always be people to take the cash and let the credit go, get-rich-quick developers willing to take that risk and get out. In the great paper industry, which is now developing in the south, there is much enlightenment. The papermakers have only recently met and agreed upon rules for proper cutting of the southern forests upon which they depend. But in this industry, as in others, there are sure to be individuals who want to take the cash and let the credit go. The south needs to be on guard against them. Its forests are too precious to be exposed to anybody's avarice or indifference.

In the New Republic last week one of the editors wrote interestingly of "approximately $90,000,000 in new capital" which "will go into the southern paper industry in the next few months. This influx of new capital into the deep south is being watched apprehensively. Its possibilities for social good or evil are enormous. Improper forestry practices on the part of the paper companies would mean, in a generation from now, greater devastation than was caused by the Civil War. Under existing law, little can be done except to warn and exhort the paper company managements, and it is reported that certain of them have voluntarily given pledges of good behavior. . . . This southern paper development sharply underscores the need for a department of conservation and a national conservation program."

Rarely, if ever, it seems to us, has a coming great industrial development been announced so well in advance as has the paper one in the south. By that token there has rarely been such opportunity to make the development a proper and profitable one in every respect.

As far back as 1888 the making of paper from southern pine was being discussed. We are indebted to Director E. L. Demmon, of the Southern Forest Experiment station, at New Orleans, for an extract from the August 15, 1888, issue of the Southwestern Lumber World, in which the following announcement from New Orleans appears: "Mr. Edward Norster has exhibited samples of wood fiber made from southern loblolly pine by the Mitscherlich bisulphate of lime process. A comparison of these samples with others made by the same process from spruce pine at Detroit clearly indicates that the southern product is the better product of the two. It is longer, stronger and whiter than the

Passenger Bus and Truck Meet on Hilltop: One Killed, 23 Injured

One man died in flaming wreckage and 23 other persons suffered burns and injuries yesterday as the result of a collision near Orion, Ala., between a streamlined Greyhound bus and a truck on a hilltop. Maurice G. Parks, of Greenville, Miss., who was riding the truck, was killed when he was hurled into the burning bus by the impact. Hero of the accident was 15-year-old Herman Cider, of Miami, Fla., who assisted other bus passengers to escape through a break he made in the windshield.

credit for tossing baggage, all of which was saved, from atop the bus.

The injured, most of them suffering only bruises and glass cuts and minor burns, were rushed to Montgomery and Troy hospitals. Eleven were taken to Troy and 12 to Montgomery.

Negro Driving Truck.

Highway Patrolmen Clyde C. Sellers and J. C. Lowman said Joe Weakiss, negro, Greenville, Miss., was driving the truck and that it was in the middle, slightly to the left, of the road when the vehicles collided.

Chief Walter K. McDuffy, of the patrol, said a warrant charging manslaughter and driving while intoxicated would be placed against the negro at Pine Level, Ala., this afternoon.

"Passengers and other witnesses told us," Lowman said, "that the truck was speeding and that it was partially on the wrong side of the road. It had been zig-zagging some, too."

Weakiss, suffering from burns, cuts and other injuries, was reported in a serious condition at a Troy hospital, although attendants said he probably would recover.

List of Injured.

Others who went to Troy hospitals for first-aid or hospital treatment included:

W. R. Hewitt, Englewood, Fla.; William Hasty, Bacon, Fla.; Miss Innis Croon, Gordon, Ala.; C. M. Green, Troy, Ala.; Doc Dubose, negro, Birmingham, Ala.; and B. S. Estom, negro, Montgomery.

Hasty, who suffered possible internal injuries, was the only one marked "serious."

Those taken to Montgomery included:

James Ector, Miami, Fla.; Wesley Randless, Headland, Ala.; Arthur T. Laney, Columbia, Ala.; C. S. Seeger, the bus driver, Birmingham, Ala.; F. A. Craddock, Enterprise, Ala.; Norman Cider, Miami, Fla.; Mrs. Bill Henderson, Birmingham, Ala.; Pearce Richardson, Tallahassee, Fla.; Jack Layton, Jacksonville, Fla.; H. L. Martin, Ozark, Ala.; and Roy Reynolds, Sassa, Texas.

A stubborn blaze, which broke out early last night in the supply room of the Crisler Bottling Company, at 507, Peters street, S. W., kept firemen fighting smoldering flames which threatened for several hours to spread over the entire building. A second alarm brought additional equipment and Fire Chief O. J. Parker to the scene.

Origin of the fire had not been determined last night. The flames broke out suddenly and gained headway rapidly, menacing seven large company trucks in an adjoining garage. The trucks were removed from danger by several workmen with the help of a large crowd which gathered quickly at the scene.

Officials of the company were unable to make an estimate of the loss after the fire had subsided because electric power in the building had been cut off.

Only a few employees were at the plant at the time and were in other parts of the building when the fire started. An explosion, though, it was caused by a tank of carbonic gas or oil, created additional excitement during the peak of the fire, but apparently caused little added damage.

James Gaddis, an employee, suffered a painful cut on the left leg when he fell while helping fight the blaze. First aid was administered in the company's office by Fireman George Maddox and Frank Haynie.

Scientists Stage Final Rehearsal For Today's Big Celestial Show

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(P)—A handful of American astronomers on a mid-Pacific island put on a dress-rehearsal today for tomorrow's big celestial show, a total eclipse of the sun which will be the longest in duration in more than 1,200 years.

The stage for the rehearsal was tiny Canton Island, 5,000 miles out in the Pacific. A joint expedition of the United States navy and the National Geographic Society focused intricate mechanical eyes on the point in the sky where the sun apparently will be eaten away by the moon.

The isolated scientists, after testing their 11-ton temporary observatory in this practice observation, reported to their Washington headquarters that all instruments were ready to catch the sun's secrets when the total eclipse occurs at 2:06 p. m. (Atlanta time) but that they were somewhat apprehensive about the weather.

INSURGENTS REOPEN ATTACK ON MADRID AFTER DAY OF QUIET

Screams of Panic-Stricken Women Mingle With Din of Screeching Shells.

MADRID, June 2.—(Tuesday)—(P)—Insurgent batteries opened an intensive fire upon Madrid early today after a day in which not a shot was heard on the capital front for the first time in many weeks.

Replied to a government bombardment from within the city, insurgent artillerymen began their cannonading shortly after midnight.

Every ten seconds a shell could be heard screeching through the air and into the capital. The missiles exploded in scattered parts of the city.

Shouts of panic-stricken women and the sound of persons running through houses to basement refuges mingled with the din of the bombardment.

Details of casualties and damage could not be ascertained immediately.

In the La Granja sector, about 33 miles northwest of the city, government and insurgent soldiers skirmished through heavily wooded sections. Their lines were considered "fox holes" instead of well defined trench systems.

Insurgent reinforcements from Segovia pushed back the government salient in the mountainous front about La Granja; government commanders said the insurgents suffered heavy losses.

The government troops clung to positions only a mile from Balsain, and still menaced La Granja.

Jean Harlow Began Meteoric Rise to Film Fame as Hollywood Extra Six Years Ago

Here are two pictures from a studio scrapbook of Jean Harlow. The inset shows William Powell, who was with the thrice-wed actress while she lay on her death bed in a Hollywood hospital. Powell has been a constant visitor since Miss Harlow, who was working on the final scenes of "Saratoga," was stricken 10 days ago with what studio officials at first dismissed as a "cold." When the doctor signaled Jean was dead, Powell ran from the room, his arm shielding his face, sobbing his grief.

The story of Jean Harlow is a story of a modern Cinderella. Six years ago she was a big player, an extra in mob scenes. At the time of her death she was one of the biggest box-office attractions in Hollywood. However, success did not change Jean, did not make her "up-stage." She was the darling of studio mechanics and "grips." Fellow artists in the higher brackets considered her a "regular" and the vast Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization into grieving confusion.

man, and the still, scarcely breathing patient on the bed.

Across the hall, was one of her friends, sitting silent in grief, and glancing up when one entered it to whisper the latest report. It was Baxter.

"Every known method of eliminating poison was used," commented Dr. Fishbaugh.

But death came at 11:37 a. m., Pacific standard time (2:37 p. m., Atlanta time).

"Funeral services will be private because her mother wishes it so," said Marino Bello, Miss Harlow's step-father.

"She wants Jean to remain the memory of her fans as she was in life, so the body will not lie in state."

Miss Harlow, who was earning approximately $4,000 a week, was reported to have left an estate of nearly $1,000,000, largely in insurance policies and annuities.

Miss Harlow was taken ill May 29 and subsequently she was reported both in a serious condition from inflammation of the gall bladder and improving from a cold.

Rocketed To Stardom.

The death of the thrice-married actress, who rocketed into stardom in "Hell's Angels" in 1930, stunned the motion picture community. Some studios stopped production on their sets for a few minutes of silence.

The actress had so often been the life of Hollywood parties. Despite the tragedies of her life, she sought to make others happy by a lively display of personality and charm.

It was four years ago that one of the bitter chapters of her life was written. She had wed Paul Bern, beloved director and film executive of Hollywood. It was yet in their honeymoon days when Hollywood was startled by the finding of the nude body of the husband on the floor of the bathroom of their Beverly Hills home.

There was a bullet wound in the temple, and his hand clutched a revolver.

Finally a verdict of suicide was rendered by a coroner's jury.

She later wed Harold G. Ross, movie photographer, but this failed of bringing domestic happiness and they were divorced.

Throughout her last illness, Powell had been constantly at her bedside.

Born in Kansas City.

Miss Harlow was born March 3, 1911, in Kansas City, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Carpenter. She was called Harlean, but her film name later was adapted from her mother's maiden

Solon Who Kissed Harlow Is Grieved

GREENSBORO, N. C., June 2.—(P)—Senator Robert R. Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, said "I am grieved beyond words; she was a wonderful girl," when told today that Jean Harlow, actress, had died in Los Angeles.

Senator Reynolds and Miss Harlow figured prominently in the press a few months ago when he kissed the actress on the capitol steps in Washington.

"Her unfortunate death will be a great loss to all those who knew and loved her through the medium of the motion picture theater," he said. "She was as great a star in private life as she was among actresses."

name and she made it permanent by court proceedings.

"Her hair was always blond," her grandmother, Mrs. S. D. Harlow, once recalled in Kansas City. "At school the children would call her 'cotton top.' It made her furious."

"In our home we always called her baby."

"She spent several childhood summers with us in our summer home, Red Gables, near Bonner Springs, Kan., overlooking the Kaw river. There is where I grew to know what kind of a child my granddaughter was. It's the picture I like best to remember of her, a picture that many people who saw her only as a hussy or a vamp in movie roles, would hardly believe. I can understand."

Serious Girl and Good.

"She was really a serious girl at heart, and a good girl. Imaginative, and impulsive, full of life, too. I remember she came to our home one day and handed me her baby ring and bracelet she had outgrown. 'You keep them for me, grandmother,' she said. 'I don't want to lose them.'"

She was seven years old then. The next three years she lived in California with her parents, and returned when she was 10 to Kansas City. Her parents were divorced next year. The grandmother was too ill today to be told of Miss Harlow's death.

She attended the Barstow Private School for Girls, and when her mother, who married Marino Bello in 1929, moved to Chicago, the daughter attended Ferry Hall private school there. She studied dramatic art, took part in school plays. From an earlier age she had shown interest in singing roles and in school dramas.

Eloped at Sixteen.

She was 16 and a student at Ferry Hall when she ran away and married Charles F. McGrew, son of a Chicago manufacturer. One story is that she made her first big film role as a bathing beauty guest at a party at the McGrew home. The guest had an appointment with a dressmaker, after which she was going to make a screen test. Jean volunteered to furnish a motor car and chauffeur to take the guest to the dressmaker, and followed it up by accompanying her to the screen testing.

At the casting office, the story continues, the lively young bride was also given the chance to take a camera test. She registered as Jean Harlow for the test, and was successful in it. This started her active interest in pushing herself toward a screen career.

She was offered small screen jobs, went to Hollywood and worked in mob scenes, as a bathing beauty, and her success was mediocre, and for a period her ambitions for stardom seemed to have hit the same rut in which accumulate the ambitions of thousands of screen girls.

Big Screen in 1930.

The lure of the camera persisted, however, and she got her big chance in 1930 to take a star role originally planned for Greta Nissen, a more experienced actress, in the "Blonde Menace" in a picture planned by Howard Hughes, the oil millionaire and movie producer. The picture was "Hell's Angel," and in it Harlow scored sensationally.

STARS ARE STUNNED BY HARLOW'S DEATH

Fellow Film Workers Valued Her as Friend and Trouper.

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(P)—The death of Jean Harlow brought expressions of sorrow today from many of her famous associates in the motion picture industry.

Some of the tributes: CLARK GABLE, who was working in a picture with her when she was stricken: "I am too overcome by grief to make any comment."

S. VAN DYKE, who directed her in many pictures: "She leaves us at the height of the glorious career—a great actress and an even greater friend."

GARY COOPER: "She was a beautiful and gallant trouper."

CECIL B. DE MILLE: "One of the most vital personalities to emerge on the screen in a decade."

FRED ASTAIR: "A fine artist and one of Hollywood's most beloved citizens."

CHARLES R. ROGERS, head of Universal: "The industry has suffered a great loss."

Troupers Like Jean.

BARBARA STANWICK: "It was trouper like Jean who made it a joy to work in pictures."

CLAUDETTE COLEBERT: "What an appealingly tragic thing. My heartfelt sympathy to her family and legion of friends."

BING CROSBY: "The suddenness of her passing makes it the more terrible for those who knew her."

FRANK LLOYD (Director): "Here is an incalculable loss."

EDDIE CANTOR: "Jean Harlow richly merited the esteem we all had for her, both as an actress and as a person. Her loss is a blow to all of us in pictures."

SONJA HENIE: "I think Miss Harlow was one of the most refreshing personalities I have ever known. She was full of life, kindly and tolerant."

Cinderella Story.

VICTOR McLAGLEN: "Her life is the finest Cinderella story I know. She rose from the ranks, was an extra in one of my pictures years ago. No actress could successfully ape her highly specialized work."

PETER LORRE: "In Europe I knew Jean Harlow as one of the screen's finest artists. When I came to Hollywood I learned she was beloved not only as a great star but as a splendid woman and a good friend. We shall all miss her terribly."

DAVID O. SELZNICK: "Her gay spirit, good nature and generosity were unequalled."

ROCHELLE HUDSON: "Jean was a great actress, a beautiful woman and a charming, trustworthy friend."

MARY PICKFORD: "Jean Harlow had a brilliant career. She lived a full and abundant life and in my belief will continue to do so, although invisible to our mortal eyes."

LOUIS B. MAYER: "This is the end of a rich personal friendship. This girl, whom so many millions adored, was one of the loveliest, sweetest persons I have known in 30 years of the theatrical business. I have lost a friend, the world has lost a ray of sunlight."

Studio May Lose Million Dollars By Jean's Death During Picture

Executives, Stars and Lowly 'Grips' Are United in Genuine Grief for Girl Who Never Became 'Up-Stage'; Second Blow to M.-G.-M. in Year.

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.

(Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and the Atlanta American News-Paper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 2.—For the second time within a year, the death of an outstanding screen personality today shrouded the big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio in sorrow and confusion.

Jean Harlow's passing followed that of Irving Thalberg, youthful production genius, by a few days less than nine months. In each case, the news was flashed over the lot shortly before the noon hour, paralyzing work in offices and on sound stages.

Although company executives had been forewarned Sunday and early Monday that Jean's illness, at first treated lightly in studio reports, had taken a critical turn, none was prepared for the shocking nature of the hospital bulletin.

Gable Leaves Lot.

Clark Gable and Lionel Barrymore were at work almost from the exterior scene for "Saratoga," race track comedy-romance in which Jean and Gable were being costarred. Gable, visibly agitated by the news, left the set without a word, got into his roadster and drove off the lot.

Fredy McDonald, who had dressed Jean's hair almost from the day she reported to the studio six years ago, fainted. Director Jack Conway ordered the set closed.

A messenger entered the set where Robert Z. Leonard was directing a duet between Allan Jones and Jeannette MacDonald. He whispered the news to Leonard. Rather than upset further a troublesome scene, the director, knowing both were close friends of Jean, did not convey the message until the song had been satisfactorily recorded.

"Saratoga" was in the final stages of production and the entire picture was "shooting around" the Harlow sequences, awaiting her recovery.

tor's said he had been dead 12 hours. Evidence that the executive was subject to fits of depression and expressions of a belief he had been killed kept the movie colony on edge until a suicide verdict was given.

The actress' third marriage, to ace film cameraman, Rosson, ended in divorce March 11, 1934, on a cruelty complaint. Among other things she complained he disturbed her sleep by reading in bed.

Alert Sense of Humor.

Blonde Miss Harlow was known in Hollywood as a good hostess and good social mixer. Friends often commented on her alert sense of humor and her attitude of not being impressed with her career or the glamour of her calling. For hobbies, she collected phonograph records and wire-haired terriers.

Her screen "type" role was that of an impetuous woman, sometimes on the "rough-tough" side. At the time of her fatal illness she was working with Clark Gable in "Saratoga," a picture with a horse-racing theme. She appeared there as a woman with more refinement than in her usual roles.

Throughout the theatrical world she was known as a "good trouper." Once on a personal appearance she was so ill that she had to be carried by her stepfather from theater to hotel.

But, of her own determination, she carried on.

END TO SHOWERS SEEN IN TODAY'S FORECAST

An end of the showers that have prevailed in Atlanta the past several days was seen in last night's prediction of the local United States Weather Bureau, forecasting partly cloudy and slightly warmer weather.

Temperatures today were expected to range from a low of 70 degrees to a high of 88. Yesterday's readings showed a low of 70 and a high of 83.

Jean left the cast 10 days ago. Gable recalled she had complained of feeling ill several days before she actually took leave.

On Saturday, May 29, Jean worked during the morning and afternoon. She phoned the set from her dressing room asking for immediate help. Too weak to remove the makeup from her face, she was helped to her car and a studio chauffeur drove her home.

Pet of Mechanics.

Jean was a popular personality on the lot and the particular pet of grips and mechanics. They swore by her because she never became upstage. She had a sympathetic understanding of their own little problems and realized as few other stars did their importance to a production.

Between scenes, one was more apt to find her swapping stories with stage carpenters and other set workers than seeking the company of those of higher professional station.

The effect of the announcement was immediately evident in the atmosphere of the commissary at noon. Usually the big room fills early and jolly conversations hum rises. Today the tables were deserted. Stars were grieving with real sincerity the passing of a girl who had won a reputation for being "regular."

Secretary Weeps.

One of the secretaries in the publicity department wept intermittently as she attempted to keep pace with an unending string of phone calls from the news services. Louis B. Mayer and other executives, too stunned by this latest thunderclap, were in no mood to discuss a solution to the dilemma the studio faces in disposing of the unfinished "Saratoga."

The picture represents an investment of a million dollars. It is a certainty it must be entirely scrapped or 90 per cent of the scenes reshot with another actress.

HAILEY AND COUCH CLASH IN COUNCIL

the expense of surveying Atlanta and Fulton county governments. Businessmen have agreed to pay a similar amount for the service and Fulton county commissioners have committed themselves to pay the other third in the event the city makes its allocation.

The Couch-Hailey clash occurred when Couch insisted he be permitted to draw a substitute measure for one offered by the board of firemen giving city firemen 20 days' vacation instead of 14 days as applies to all other municipal employees.

Asks Uniformity.

Couch insisted holidays granted city hall employees should be made uniformly applicable to all employees. He asserted that firemen would get 21 days, instead of 20.

Hailey insisted that unless council recessed to allow the writing of the Couch measure, he would be forced to proceed. Couch pointed out that presiding officers always had allowed council members time to prepare resolutions affecting any matter before the council.

Hailey then proceeded to what Couch termed "a lecture."

Police Amendment.

While the debate proceeded, Alderman Roy E. Callaway prepared and offered an amendment including policemen with firemen in the vacation schedule.

Council then recessed after Couch attacked what he termed Hailey's "attempt to railroad the issue," to allow Couch to draw his paper.

Hailey and Couch clashed again during the recess, and when Hailey reconvened council, he told members he would "enforce the rules governing the conduct of the council.

Couch's substitute, with other vacation papers, were referred to the finance committee.

Council approved establishment of a committee of five council members to act as liaison between city, county, state and federal governments in obtaining the Whitehall street widening. It was presented by the public works committee and had been offered by Callaway. The mayor will name the committee. The measure also requested Dr. O. E. Collum, chairman of a group of property owners along the route, to convene that group and provide the right-of-way.

Underpass Measure.

Couch was author of the North avenue and Marietta street underpass measure, which pledged the city to pay $50,000 towards procuring rights of way if Fulton county would provide another $50,000 and if the state of Georgia and railroads would set up $100,000 each.

Hailey was author of the proposal to construct the underpass at North avenue near Sears-Roebuck. He said the project could be executed for about $40,000 and would relieve traffic congestion.

Other Actions.

Among other major actions by the council were:

1. Reference to the public works committee of a petition by the Georgia Power Company to provide bus service for Techwood by extending the Pine-Cooper street bus line. The company also asked permission to abandon street car lines on Carnegie way, Cain and Luckie streets and Hemphill avenue.

2. Tabled a move by Councilman John T. Marler, chairman of the board of firemasters, to readvertise for bids for fire equipment.

3. Referred to the finance committee a request from the county for action on a petition for proposal of the county to pay 50 per cent of the cost of establishing a firehouse at Lakewood Heights.

4. Adopted resolutions expressing sympathy to Councilman William T. Knight, who underwent an operation during the day for appendicitis.

5. Diverted $425 additional for rabies control work. The fund will provide another truck to take up stray dogs.

6. Set up $1,719 for improvement of the fire alarm system.

Water Rate Cuts.

7. Authorized signing of a contract with the government for water to the University housing project, and adopted a new water schedule shaving the general increase of about 30 per cent to users to about 25 per cent for wholesale buyers. Councilman J. Frank Beck warned that rates must be further cut or the city would drive industries from Atlanta.

8. Renewed the lease of the Eastern Air Lines at Atlanta airport for 15 years and a rental of $900 a year, and the lease of the United States Bureau of Air Commerce for another year at a rental of $800.

9. Requested the county commission to purchase a six-acre tract in the rear of the Capitol View school at a cost of $1,500. The plot will be utilized for park purposes and the parks committee will improve and equip it at an approximate cost of $1,500. It will be known as Millican park in honor of the late Mrs. Emma Millican, mother of Senator G. Everett Millican.

10. Revoked the permit of the Howell Park pharmacy to sell wines and beer.

Angle Parking Defeated.

11. Defeated a proposal by Councilman John A. White to allow angle parking on Peachtree street near Tenth street.

12. Sent back to the police committee for further study a proposal to bar parking on Forsyth street between Mitchell and Peachtree streets from 6 until 9 a. m. and from 4 until 6 p. m.

13. Approved an ordinance barring left-hand turns at Peachtree and Ellis, Cain and Harris streets, and established non-parking on Edgewood from Ivy to Courtland; Ivy from Decatur to Baker, and Means from Marietta to Bankhead.

avenue between the hours of 7 and 9 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m.

14. Sent to the finance committee for study a proposal that Fulton county operate the Peachtree creek trunk sewer and the R. M. Clayton disposal plant.

15. Filed a petition asking repeal of a city ordinance barring peddling of ice cream on city streets. The law has been voided by the courts.

16. Directed the health and sanitation committee of council to study an ordinance to include domestic servants in the food handlers ordinance requiring physical examination.

18. Authorized employment of architects to draw plans for modernization of Maddox and Murphy Junior high schools. A 6 per cent fee was provided from bond funds.

Mrs. Hill was 43 years old and was a native of Cincinnati. She moved to Atlanta with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Singleton, and resided at the Blackstone apartments before her marriage.

While here she was private secretary to John M. Ross, former Atlanta bank executive. She and her husband were members of many of the city's prominent social organizations.

Mr. Hill, a graduate of the University of Georgia, said his wife had been suffering from a nervous ailment and heart disease.

above-named cases. At the same time, on its own motion, it reopened these proceedings for further hearings. The date and places of hearings will be announced later.

Governor Graves, of Alabama, and attorneys for the Southeastern Mills filed the textile case along with a petition seeking reduction in rates on many manufactured and processed articles from southern territory. They argued "discriminatory" rates resulted in a high operating cost in southern factories, which was reflected in low wages for workers and a low standard of living.

The governor told the commission the new textile rates were higher than those in any other territory.

PRIVILEGE DOOMED, CHURCHMAN TELLS EMORY GRADUATES

Bishop Flint Warns Transformation Is Needed More Than Reformation.

Diplomas were delivered to 280 Emory graduates yesterday at exercises climaxed the ninety-seventh annual commencement program of the university at Glenn Memorial auditorium.

Bishop Charles W. Flint, of the Methodist Episcopal church, a former chancellor of Syracuse University, delivered the commencement address, titled "A Reformer Takes His Bearings."

House Cleaning Needed.

"If capitalism can clean house, reduce iniquities, harness monopolies, eliminate the wastes of competition, obviate depressions, and in general gear itself to public welfare, the highest good of all, it may be saved," Bishop Flint said.

He voiced a belief that social regulation of industry and labor is a permanent fixture, and that no individual member of society has a right to follow his own desires without regard for others.

"No one can blind himself to the public's determination that economic power and privilege, provided and protected by the public, may no longer gouge that public or appropriate more than a fair share of the profits of enterprise."

Elaborating further on the present economic outlook, he said: "There is a growing consciousness of stewardship or trusteeship. What we call our own is that the use only of which is permitted us, and that under certain limitations."

Awakenings Cited.

Declaring that the cry of "change the system!" voiced by reformers is often futile, he cited numerous examples of national experiments which had proven disillusioning.

"The need today is more for transformers than for reformers," he said. "The need of the hour is men who can accomplish by creating conviction rather than by exercising compulsion."

In concluding, the speaker stressed a need for revival of the religious spirit. "To rise higher," he said, "progress needs desperately a divine undergirding upon which it may rest, and a divine overarching to which it may draw."

Degrees with honors in their fields of specialization were awarded to six members of the senior class as follows: Jim M. Combs, Covington; Abraham Geffen and Norman H. Giler, Atlanta; and James E. McCran, Miami, all in biology; Petro C. Lamas, Savannah, in Greek; and Thomas E. Scott, Atlanta, in romance languages.

Departmental medals for excellence were awarded to Woodrow Fuller, Atlanta; the Benson Freeman medal, in German; Thomas E. Scott, Atlanta, the Medaille Lorrains, in French; George Copeland Jr., Atlanta, the McCord medal, in Latin; and A. Waldo Sewell, Gorton, the Rivers medal, in accounting.

Awards in the Lamar School of Law were as follows: W. S. Thomson scholarship key and the Harrison prize, to William H. Agnor, of Lexington, Va.; W. S. Thompson scholarship key to Marvin Williams Jr., of Atlanta.

WPA TO INCREASE SPONSORS' SHARES

New Work Program To Raise Requirements.

Sponsors' contributions to WPA project costs in Georgia would be increased approximately 4 per cent under a proposed regulation to require sponsors to put up 22 per cent of the cost, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator, announced yesterday.

The announcement, yesterday was made after a recheck of projects. WPA officials Sunday had said the order would have little effect in the state.

The proposal would put the new regulation to work July 1, and according to an announcement, the ruling would become effective with a new work program.

Eighteen per cent of the total cost of the work program in Georgia through April 30 has been put up by sponsors, Miss Shepperson said. Federal expenditures in the state, she said, aggregated $30,185,408 and sponsors contributed $8,618,692.

Sponsors have contributed slightly more than 18 per cent on construction projects, Miss Shepperson added, and on non-manual projects sponsors gave slightly less than 18 per cent.

WPA district headquarters at Savannah, Augusta, Macon, Albany and Atlanta yesterday began shaving their pay rolls down to meet the new edict cutting the state's quota to 25,000 workers.

The number of workers to be dropped from each district, according to an announcement by Miss Shepperson Saturday, were: Atlanta, 1,950; Savannah, 476; Augusta, 529; Macon, 363; and Albany, 182.

CITY GAS PURCHASE INJUNCTION LIFTED

Lowest Bid Acceptance Held Unnecessary.

The city of Atlanta may purchase gasoline for use by the municipality from whomsoever it wishes, regardless of who is the lowest bidder, Judge Paul S. Ethridge ruled in effect yesterday in dismissing on demurrer a petition for injunction brought by Fred L. Hutcheson, as a taxpayer.

The petition sought to secure an order forcing the city to purchase gasoline from the Hood Oil Company, which, the petition alleges, submitted the lowest bid for the May fuel contract. The petitioner alleged other companies had been given the business.

In the city's demurrer, it was contended there is no law to make the city accept a low bid and that the petitioner had not submitted enough facts on which the court could rule the contract was not given the lowest bidder. It was further contended the city did not have to procure bids before purchasing the gasoline.

Ban Off, Dogs Roam Decatur Once More

Dogs roamed Decatur's streets yesterday without restriction, after a month of confinement by owners following a mad dog scare.

An emergency city ordinance, passed at a called council meeting after several Decatur school children were bitten by a rabid animal, ordered all dogs in the city kept indoors for four weeks. Its time limit expired yesterday.

The bitten children underwent successful antirabies inoculations.

No new cases appeared among the city's dogs during this period, according to Decatur Police Chief George Swords, who expressed appreciation of city officials for co-operation of residents in enforcing the confinement order.

TRAFFIC ADVISERS NAMED FOR SOUTH

Council Designed To Further Campaign for Rate Adjustments in Dixie.

Added impetus was given to the campaign for adjustment of the southern freight rate structure by the formation last week of the Traffic Advisory Group of the Southern States Industrial Council at Nashville.

Carl R. Cunningham, Atlanta, manager of the traffic department of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, was named a member of the committee.

The session was called by John E. Edgerton, president of the council, and representatives of numerous southern industrial and traffic groups were in attendance.

Edgerton said the council's traffic committee could function more effectively with the assistance of an advisory committee.

"The move for rate reductions affects all industries in the south and is designed for the betterment of southern industry as a whole," he declared. "The council has no interest in this or any other matter except in so far as it affects the competitive power of industry in our section as a whole."

Edgerton pointed out that behind the move are the governors of the states affected, southern industry and in general and the railroads.

DR. HOPE PORTRAIT IS UNVEILED HERE

Late Atlanta University President Honored.

An oil portrait of Dr. John Hope, late president of Atlanta University, was revealed to the public for the first time yesterday morning at the close of the sixty-eighth commencement exercises of the university. The portrait by Winifred Rieber, eminent American artist, was unveiled in the conference room of the Atlanta University administration building, where it is to have its permanent place. The unveiling took place in the presence of members of Dr. Hope's family, the university faculty, the speakers of commencement day, and representatives of the students and alumni of Atlanta University, Spelman College, and Morehouse College.

The portrait was uncovered by President Samuel H. Archer, of Morehouse College, after which the light which illumines the painting was switched on by President Florence M. Read, of Spelman College. During the remainder of the day the public was given opportunity to view the painting.

World's Biggest Tire-Maker Hits Bull's-eye in Endeavor to Offset Soaring Costs with Stunning New Product Wanted by Millions of Car-Owners

READ EVERY WORD... HERE'S THE NEWS YOU'VE BEEN WAITING FOR... HOW TO GET FIRST-CLASS TRAVEL AT REDUCED RATES!

A SWELL BREAK for every car-owner who wants quality tires of the leading make and national reputation—at the price he has been paying. This new Goodyear "R-1" tire is built to order for the millions of these drivers!

YOU know what's happening—the headlines have been full of it for weeks.

Up...up...up...goes cost of production—up goes labor, materials, and the price of almost everything you buy.

A situation like that is a stirring challenge to everyone who makes serious claim to serving the public interest.

It's a challenge to Goodyear—to the resourcefulness, enterprise and leadership that have made Goodyear the greatest rubber company in the world.

Goodyear Delivers—Now!

Right now Goodyear meets that challenge squarely on the nose—meets it with a big, handsome, tough, thrifty new tire—the sensational Goodyear "R-1."

Seeing the threat of climbing costs several months ago, Goodyear swung into action its full development and engineering resources; focusing the greatest talent in the rubber world on this single job.

The target was a new tire—in which brains, ingenuity and experience should offset rising labor and materials.

And Goodyear hit that target right in the bull's-eye—with this good-looking, good-wearing, good-value new "R-1" AT THE PRICE YOU'RE USED TO PAYING!—this knockout of a tire now waiting for you at Goodyear dealers' and Goodyear Service Stores.

Look it Over—Judge for Yourself

One glimpse at this great new "R-1" tells you it's got the stuff—here's the "beef" that delivers longer mileage—there's 12% more rubber in that massive tread.

We took as a foundation the dependable, thrifty construction lessons learned in building more than 23,000,000 Pathfinders, and on that we applied the principles of long tread wear, safe going, sure traction developed in the famed "G-3" All-Weather—most popular tire in the world.

We packed in every great Goodyear feature. Center Traction—the Goodyear Margin of Safety. Higher, broader shoulders to "hold" true on curves, to steer more easily. Wider riding-ribs for slow even wear. Patented Supertwist Cord in every ply for maximum blowout protection!

Don't wait; go see "R-1" in your size now—you'll agree that Goodyear has certainly tossed a bombshell into the field of bed-rock-priced high quality—the right tire at the right price at the right time!

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY THE "R-1" IS GREAT

Look at these standout features which Goodyear's unequaled experience and tire-making facilities make possible at this new low price.

FLATTER, WIDER TREAD gives you more road contact, more traction
12% MORE RUBBER IN TREAD gives you longer wear, more mileage
HIGHER, BROADER SHOULDERS give you more "hold" on curves
CENTER TRACTION gives you the Goodyear Margin of Safety
SUPERTWIST CORD IN EVERY PLY gives you maximum blowout protection
HANDSOME, STREAMLINED SIDEWALLS give you car smart modern looks

Remember—THE CHEAPEST THING ON YOUR CAR IS THE BEST TIRES YOU CAN BUY!

CAN TAKE IT—there's 12% more rubber in the "R-1" tread... more miles.

BROAD-SHOULDERS—"R-1" shoulders are higher, broader, to "hold" better on curves.

WHERE IT COUNTS—that beefy tread is wider, flatter. More road-contact, better traction.

THIS PICTURE SHOWS THE GOODYEAR PRICE LINE-UP TODAY

"G-3" Greatest safety and mileage money can buy
"R-1" Gives you first-class travel at reduced rates
SPEEDWAY Lowest possible price at which a good tire can be built

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Carol Clayton resents her dead father's friend, handsome Duke Bradley, a book-maker. She is engaged to wealthy Hartley Madison and Duke accuses her of marrying for money. In a fit of passion she tells him she will play the horses so she can pay him her father's $75,000 debt. She challenges him to take her bets, although what Duke really wants is Hartley's business—a wish that Carol determinedly thwarts. Her luck is phenomenal, but on the racing track she makes a daring move. She is heading for a nervous breakdown. Then Duke makes a move. He tells Hartley of Carol's condition. This he knows, will bring him to Florida. Once at the track, Duke knows he will bet. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVI. There in the doorway, clutching the train of her negligee, stood Carol. "I bet on the winner, darling," cried Madison. "Two thousand dollars I bet—Duke was good enough to let me bet one after the race started and then when Stardust was ahead at the half, let me double it. Did you ever hear of anything so decent as that?" Carol did not speak. She did not move. Only her eyes turned to Duke. If looks could kill, Duke thought, that would be his last moment. He knew what was racing through her mind, making her eyes narrow in anger. But Madison was so thrilled by the race, by his winning, that he did not notice how strangely she was behaving. It was three to one on Stardust, Madison went on happily. "And it brings our wedding day that much closer." Then she found her voice. "What do you mean?" she asked. "I don't know why he shouldn't have told me, Carol. But it just happens he didn't." "I've always heard men are loyal to each other," said Carol. "But there is no need to lie to me. Nobody in the world knew why I was following the races but Duke, so who else could have told you?" "You forget, Carol dear," said Madison, "you told the doctor. And now shall we forget everything except that I won on the race and our wedding day is closer by six thousand dollars' worth." Boswell who had been waiting for a chance to speak thought this the opportune moment. "You know, Mr. Madison," he said, "the market is closing soon—I have a clear telephone line to New York. What shall I say about United Copper?" Madison glanced at his wrist. "Your watch is slow," he said. "The market has closed. It doesn't matter. It can wait a day." "If you say so," said the secretary, as he went through the door. "But it meant at least half a million and—"

"Forget it, Boswell," said Madison. "This is no day to talk of such things, quotations and possible losses and gains." Duke, who had been counting a big roll of bills, handed them to Madison. He held them out to Carol. "I can't take this money," she said. "But Carol, darling, why not?" "I've got to do this by myself," she said. "If I'd wanted any help, I'd have mentioned it before this. And I don't want you betting and giving the money to me." Her words and the way she said them made Madison more anxious than he had been before about her nerves. This couldn't go on. She would break, if things were not made right soon. "Carol," he said gently, "all I want to do is to make you happy—us happy. We shouldn't have postponed our marriage in the first place. But you wanted to, so I consented. Now that I understand why you did it, I'm prouder than I can say of your pride and pluck. But it's quixotic to go on like this. Duke—you tell her." Duke shook his head. "Sorry, Madison," he said, "but this is something between Carol and you. It's the two of you who must decide." "I will decide," said Carol, firmly. "And I want to be let alone." Hartley was deeply hurt. Some way this didn't check with what the doctor had said. Carol saw what she had done and was sorry. It was all that Duke; whenever he was near her, she seemed to lose control of herself. Her voice was softer when she spoke. "I'm sorry, Hartley," she said, "to have spoken like that. Perhaps I am more tired than I knew. And I don't want to be taking part in our affairs. He's all right to bet with—for me to bet with, we are not friends. And you, Hartley—I hope this won't hurt you—it shouldn't. But I do wish you'd go on about your business. Everything will be better if you only will."

"If you don't want me with you," "Oh, Hartley," she said, "why can't you understand? Maybe I am quixotic as you say, but I simply have to do this. I must make that $75,000 all by myself. I'll be doing it soon if I'm alone. But when you are with me, I'm thinking of you all the time. I can't keep my mind on my hand-capping. I want to be with you, a good companion. Please, Hartley, won't you understand? Won't you let me have my way in this? It means everything to me." Her words and her voice drove away his worry and eased the hurt in his heart. The doctor was right, after all. What she was doing wasn't so sensible—but who expected a girl in love to be that? "I understand perfectly, dear," he said. "I should be attending to my business. I've had a glorious day, seeing you and winning on the race, but it is over. And soon—" "Thank you, Hartley," she said. "And now I think I'll go and lie down. Dr. Beard said he was going to send up some one to give me a massage. Will I see you again?" "If we are to be separated, I think not," she said. "I'll tell you goodbye now." He put his arm around her and walked with her to the door. He kissed her and he was so happy he did not notice that she did not return it, that she drew herself away rather hastily from his embrace. Just before she closed the door to her room, she called out to Duke, who had walked to the window and was looking out. "Let me go," cried Carol struggling with them. She managed to free one arm. She swung it around and hit the masseuse squarely in the eye. "Miss Clayton," came a sharp cry. Continued Tomorrow.

THE SUN'S MIGHTY FLAMES.

On the day of a total eclipse of the sun, our thoughts travel to the mighty light which shines upon our earth, day after day, year after year.

Nowadays we learn about an eclipse of the sun well in advance of the day on which it takes place. We await the event with interest, and scientists are ready to give special study.

Facts have been learned during eclipses about the sun's corona. The corona is a pearly white light which appears to be produced by thin gas above the sun's surface. Comets have been known to pass through the corona, but the gas has not caused them to "slow up," as would have happened if they had gone through heavy gas.

In addition to the corona, the sun has flames of mighty size which shoot up many thousands of miles. These can be studied during an eclipse, but it is also possible to study them by blocking out the central ball of the sun by placing a dark disk in front of the telescope.

In 1919, photographs were made of a gigantic flame which rose from the sun's surface during a period of six hours. The first photograph showed the flame to have a height of 125,000 miles, and the last photograph showed the topmost part of it had risen to a height of 410,000 miles! Think of fire traveling so far upward, and at such speed!

Sometimes the flames shoot so high above the sun's surface that they seem to "break off," and go into outer space where they are lost to sight.

VOTES FOR CONTROL OF LIQUOR ASKED BY REPEALISTS

PROHIBITION ABUSES CITED BY GRIFFIN IN HIS LAST APPEAL

Dry Forces Attack 'Liquor Forces' in Victory Prediction.

The campaign for repeal of the prohibition law, to be voted on in today's general election, was brought to a close yesterday with claims of victory both from the repealists and the prohibitionists, although neither group would name any figure by which it expected to win.

The final appeal for repeal came from S. Marvin Griffin, chairman of the Georgia Alcoholic Control Association, while the final dry plea came from W. W. Gaines, chairman of the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition. Griffin spoke over the radio, while at Columbus, the Rev. H. E. McBryer, former Methodist minister, and R. J. Reynolds Jr., Atlanta lawyer, spoke in support of repeal.

Griffin's last prohibitionist appeal was by declaring that "prohibition liquor today is sending more people to hell than did that of saloon days."

He said "the question is not: 'Shall I vote wet or dry?' But the question tomorrow will be: 'Shall I vote for or against control, regulation and taxation of spirituous liquors?'"

Griffin explained that "after tomorrow's referendum not a single county in the state of Georgia will be permitted to sell spirituous liquors, and every county will remain in its present state unless 15 per cent of the qualified voters wish to petition the ordinary of the county for an election."

Saloons Barred.
The association chairman said "no saloons will be permitted under the control act, and although none of us contends that the adoption of the alcoholic beverage control act will do away with all the ills of the liquor traffic, our op-

Youth Gulps Dollar Purely by Accident

Hampton McRae, 15-year-old Blackshear, Ga. boy, probably has learned that his mouth is not exactly a safe place to keep his money.

He is under observation in a private hospital here after having swallowed a Canadian silver dollar. He had the dollar in his mouth, a friend slapped him on the back, he gulped, and down went the dollar. That was a week ago.

Yesterday he attended a movie, apparently in no distress, despite the belief that an operation will be necessary.

Parents know that under control and regulation our young boys and girls will be prohibited from buying whisky, less will be sold to the drunkards who rove the streets and travel the highways to endanger the lives of innocent people.

Griffin declared "to those ministers who are fighting control and regulation, and are allying themselves with the liquor element of Georgia, I have this to say: Let's have a little more conscientious work for true temperance; a little more instruction along wholesome lines for our boys and girls; a little more work and prayers for our many iniquities, and considerable less politics."

Gaines' Statement.

Mr. Gaines' final statement follows: "This campaign which we have conducted has been with just one purpose in mind, and that is to defeat repeal of our state prohibition law."

"We have studiously avoided taking sides on any of the pending issues. We have taken no sides for or against the social security program, for or against Governor Rivers or former Governor Talmadge, for or against any political faction or any political party. This question of repeal was not in any party platform nor was any campaign made on it. All voters are perfectly free to vote their preference on this liquor question. We hope to receive large support from members of all parties and all factions, and our appeal has been to them all. It is a separate question, one of reason and conscience and morals."

"The repealists would have the voters receive the childlike assumption that the liquor forces will obey all of the provisions of the proposed law. Even if they did, the law would be ineffectual. Any law which provides for larger and larger consumption of liquor is ineffectual. But even at that, the assumption is contrary to all experience with the liquor forces. Only a very short while ago, in our own city of Atlanta, an effort was made to compel the saloons to close at 10 o'clock to observe the Sunday closing laws. The liquor forces made every effort to prevent it, rushing to the courts and to the newspapers with their complaints. It is their same old story: they know no law and no control."

"Misapprehension."
"A good many good people will probably vote for repeal under a misapprehension. But the trouble is that those good people will not be in control of things if legal liquor comes back. The liquor manufacturers, the liquor dealers and the liquor lobby, which during its whole history has poisoned American politics, will be in control."

"In the old liquor days the liquor power tried to control the nomination and election of nearly every officer in the state and nation."

"A congressional investigation revealed that the liquor power boasted that it elected this Governor, or defeated this candidate for the United States senate all over the United States. Its tentacles reached to the uttermost town council or militia district. In the three years now since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment this liquor power has grown back to its preprohibition proportions. Congressmen Claude A. Fuller, of Arkansas, recently said on the floor of the house that it had become a national scandal, monopoly and menace."

"We are again going to defeat repeal today."

RIVERS CONCLUDES AMENDMENT DRIVE

Governor and Wife Honored on Wedding Anniversary at Demorest, Clayton.

CLAYTON, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—Governor Rivers closed his campaign for the passage of 26 amendments to the constitution here today by asking the voters "to finish the job you started last year."

"Everyone," he said, "knew what I stood for in the 1936 election."

He said 145 of 159 counties of the state, familiar with his views on old age pensions and tax exemption, voted for him.

"I am not asking the people to vote tomorrow for anything they didn't vote for last September," he declared.

The Governor wound up his two months' stumping campaign at a barbecue given in his honor by Rabun county officers.

Amendments Stressed.
Rivers cited other portions of his program, including school expansion, better roads and public health, but declared the parts of the program referred back to the people for their "second" approval are those requiring constitutional amendments to become operative.

"You elected me Governor, you said you wanted these things done, and all I'm trying to do is carry out these promises," he said.

Clyde Holden, Clayton attorney, presided at the meeting held at a mountain pavilion, and Mrs. Ed Holden, member of the State Democratic Executive Committee, presented Mrs. Rivers with flowers.

Wedding Anniversary.
Members of the Rivers family were present at the barbecue, which was a celebration of the 23d wedding anniversary of Governor and Mrs. Rivers.

They eloped to this county and obtained their marriage license from James F. Smith, who was then county ordinary. Smith was present to congratulate the state's first couple.

Earlier today, Governor Rivers was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree from the College at Demorest, Piedmont College graduates, mentioned only by inference the 26 proposed amendments to the state constitution to be voted on tomorrow. He urged the graduates to take an active interest in home ownership, public health, public education and religion.

"Without these four essentials of citizenship, no state can prosper," he declared.

The college also conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree on William T. Blount, of New York city, treasurer of the general convention of Congregational churches.

Piedmont College is a Congregational church school.

The Governor and Blount, together with President George C. Bellinger, of the college, led the colorful academic procession up a hill to the college auditorium.

At the college, the Governor, made passing mention of his wedding anniversary. "I've been getting on with her pretty good for 23 years," he said.

BOYS' BEATING LAID TO ORPHANAGE HEAD

MACON, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—J. W. Camp, superintendent of the Georgia Industrial Home, here tonight furnished bond of $150 in each of two cases charging him with assault and battery of two youths at a swimming hole in Rocky creek Sunday afternoon.

Warrants charging the head of the orphanage with the offenses were obtained today by Mrs. J. N. Mathews, who told officers Camp beat her son, Joe Burrell Mathews, 13, and his playmate, Tommy Whiting, 13, with a stick.

It would increase the number of eligible for Confederate widow pensions. The law now provides the widows must have been married prior to 1891; the amendment would extend this time to January 1, 1920.

Number 7 would permit supreme court justices, rather than the Governor, to name substitute judges, and the ninth would enlarge jurisdiction of courts of ordinary, municipal courts and police courts to tie in with the new state highway patrol now being organized. Most of the other amendments are local in their application.

Disappearance of Pretty Socialite Baffles Scotland Yard Detectives

LONDON, June 7.—(UP)—Scotland Yard admitted tonight that it was "completely baffled" by the mysterious disappearance of Diana (Didi) Batty, 21-year-old society beauty, after discovery of several cryptic threatening letters.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Leonard Hackett, widely-known British airplane pilot, told detectives that before her daughter's disappearance last Tuesday several anonymous letters were sent to her.

One of them said: "Unless you treat your fiancé better you will be taken away."

Michael Asquith, Oxford student and son of Lady Cynthia Asquith, who was to marry the blonde beauty, was questioned and revealed that he, too, had received threatening notes.

The nature of the threats against Asquith was not revealed by Scotland Yard investigators.

Mrs. Evelyn McGregor, 226 Glenn Street, Awarded Weekly Reward Given by The Constitution for Best Picture Lead Turned In.

By THE PHOTO TIP EDITOR.
"It'll be a mighty long time before the next one," said a 15-year-old mother at Grady hospital last Saturday.

"It may be a long time before I hear of another photo tip that's as good as this one," said Mrs. Evelyn McGregor, of 226 Glenn street, S. W.

Mrs. McGregor, just like hundreds of other Atlantans, knows a good story when she hears of one, and she knows too that The Constitution photo tip editor is peeling a $5 bill off his roll each week for the best photo tip received that week.

Photographer on Job.
Mrs. McGregor hurried to a phone and called the photo tip editor. The photo tip editor also knows a good story when he hears of one and he dispatched a photographer to Grady.

Atlantans saw the picture and read the story in the Sunday edition of The Constitution and they called in to comment on it.

Mrs. McGregor's tip was a live story, a story of timely interest because of the recent discovery of child brides, a story replete with human interest.

It told of how Lois Alene Baugh was married at 14 to Howard Langford. It told of a bouncing daughter, weight nine pounds, one-half ounce, born Wednesday. It told how the little girl's arrival temporarily "stumped" Mrs. Langford because she had expected a boy and had decided on his name, only to find out she must think about names all over again.

Mrs. McGregor wins the $5 photo tip prize for the best tip of the week. She will receive her check through the mails with the congratulations of the photo tip editor.

GOSSIPS TO SUPPLY KIDDY REVUE SKIT

Sewing Implements' Side of Circle Meeting Be Told by Talented Youngsters.

Members of the "sewing circles" will take a back seat at the ninth annual Kiddy Revue, which opens Friday at the Grand, and "get an idea" of what their needles, scissors and "dumbles" think of these gossipy sessions.

Atlanta's juvenile stars will feature one number that will present the implements' side of the sessions, and Miss or Mrs. Gossip may just as well sit back and enjoy the laughs.

The button will be there and so will the cloth. The scissors and the thimble have consented to appear on the program to aid the Scottish Rite Milk Fund. Others who have announced their intention of attending are the needles and thread, the wool, pincushion, needle cases. They will all dance and make merry.

The revue features 23 other novelty, dance and song numbers and a cast of 125 of Atlanta's most talented youngsters, the Atlanta Masonic Club, sponsoring the milk fund revue, announces.

With funds raised at the revue milk will be purchased during the coming year for the crippled children who are fighting for stronger bones under supervision of expert doctors at the Scottish Rite hospital.

Each year, under the sponsorship of the Masons, the healthful children of the city, stage a revue to help fill the milk fund buckets.

In addition to the revue the theater management announces a full feature-length Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Way Out West," will also be on the program.

MITCHELL WILL NAME SUCCESSOR TO BAGGS

PELHAM, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—Mitchell county will elect a state legislator to succeed the late G. B. Baggs Tuesday in addition to voting on 26 constitutional amendments and repeal of the state prohibition law.

Candidates for the post are B. E. Carlisle and Robert Culpepper Jr.

Other elections on special questions, in addition to the amendments and repeal, will be held in Dublin and Albany.

Albany will vote on daylight saving time, and Dublin on a proposal to exempt new industries from taxation during their first five years of operation.

DEFAULTS ON DEBT.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Yugoslavia notified the United States today that it would default again on its semi-annual war debt installment, amounting with past due payments to $1,875,000.

ASSOCIATE OF PASTEUR DIES IN JACKSONVILLE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 7. (AP)—Victor Lieberman, 80, retired chemist and once an associate of Louis Pasteur, died here after an extended illness.

He was a native of Paris and lived in Philadelphia, Pa., for years. He came to Florida 12 years ago.

Lieberman worked under the direction of the famous French scientist after completing his formal education.

INDUSTRIALIST DIES.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Lewis Burton Hall, 79, vice president of the International Silver Company, died yesterday in his apartment in Brooklyn. He was born in Meriden, Conn., and is survived by his widow, the former Mrs. Julia Montgomery, and a son, Lewis B. Hall Jr.

TALMADGE APPEALS FOR RIVERS DEFEAT

Asks Repudiation of 26 Amendments in Ballot-ing Today.

By the Associated Press.
In a final appeal last night to Georgians to vote against the Rivers-endorsed constitutional amendments in tomorrow's election, ex-Governor Talmadge said 18 of them "create more taxes, and the others provide for a lot of patronage jobs."

In a speech over radio station WSB Talmadge said "All of them are burdens on the taxpayers of Georgia."

Talmadge added: "I am not a candidate for office, and my only interest in this election on June 8 is the welfare of my native state."

He said there had been only 21 amendments to the federal constitution since its adoption, "but we are called on tomorrow by the state administration to add on 96 more pages of law to the constitution."

"The cardinal rule for good news is quick action. The story must be told while it's news."

Commenting on a pamphlet issued by the state Democratic committee, urging adoption of the amendments, Talmadge said: "On the front of the pamphlet, it reads something like this: 'Let's go, Georgians! Twenty-six speeds all forward!'"

"What do you think of state officials calling on the voters of Georgia, in a language like racing an automobile, to 'let's go' to get in a car with 26 speeds—all forward?"

"Of course it was an accident of the advocates of these constitutional amendments to describe so accurately what they want the people of Georgia to do tomorrow."

"They want the people of Georgia to first get drunk on liquor—legalize the sale of liquor, go to the polls about half drunk, and add 26 more 'speeds'—taxing the people, and creating more jobs to be paid for out of the tax payers' money."

AMELIA IN AFRICA AFTER OCEAN HOP

lanta time) we took off from Pan-American airport at Natal. The trip across was uneventful as usual—just another routine crossing of this stretch of the Atlantic which has been flown so many, many times. The weather was exactly as predicted by the efficient air force meteorologist.

Throughout most of the distance head winds prevailed. I darsay they averaged 20 miles an hour for the first half of the distance. Then came a stretch of doldrums, a period of clear skies and then into an area of low ragged clouds strewn all about the sky and the heaviest rain I ever saw.

The heavens fairly opened. Fortunately that was long after daylight. The water splashed against the glass of my cockpit windows, a soiled emulsion mixed with the oil splashed from the propellers.

Our flying speed seems to have been about what I had planned. Throughout my flight calculations have been built on a base speed of 150 miles per hour. Reckoning the distance covered as about 1,900 miles, our average fell just a little short of the estimate, as on those that have preceded.

Tonight we'll stay here. Tomorrow we will hop over to Dakar, and there set final plans. Exactly what route will try to follow across Africa will then be determined.

TRIAL OF COMPTON IS BEGUN IN ATHENS

Bank Robbery Case To Follow in Federal Court.

ATHENS, Ga., June 7.—The Athens division of federal district court recessed this afternoon in the midst of the trial of W. H. Compton, former Madison county commissioner, charged with violation of the federal law requiring payment of taxes on whisky. Trial will be resumed at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Compton's trial will be followed by that of Martin Prisament and Frank Cartree, charged with the robbery of the Crawford Bank of $3,600 last December. This case is expected to take up most of the week.

Judge Bascom S. Deaver, presiding, today sentenced four men and placed four on probation upon conviction of transporting whisky. The cases were as follows:

Adel Thurmond and Rufus Smith, both of Madison county, and Guy Burgess and Floyd Hill, both of Franklin county, a year and a day in Atlanta federal penitentiary; and Rufus Smith, Madison county, a year and a day at the Chillicothe.

George Elrod and Joe J. Chitwood, both of Franklin county, and Jimmy Lee Bush, negro, and Lee Betts, both of Oglethorpe county, one year's probation.

U. S. ACTS TO BREAK ALUMINUM DEADLOCK

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(P)—Attorney General Cummings acted tonight to break a deadlock in the government's anti-trust suit against the Aluminum Company of America by issuing a certificate designed to remove the Aluminum case from Pittsburgh, Pa., to a special three-judge court at Philadelphia.

Last month Federal Judge Robert M. Gibson issued an order at Pittsburgh restraining the government from prosecuting the case anywhere outside western Pennsylvania.

The attorney general asserted that he did not propose to play "judicial chess" with "the nation's No. 1 monopoly."

Barbara Hiestand's Engagement Results From College Romance

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA friends learned with affectionate interest of the betrothal of Barbara Hiestand, former Atlanta, to Fred Hughes Bragassa, of Oklahoma City. Until four years ago Barbara was numbered among Atlanta's most popular belles, as was her sister, the former Mary Hiestand, who is now Mrs. Russell Faye. With their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hiestand, and Janet, their younger sister, Mary and Barbara moved to Oklahoma City four years ago for residence. Soon after leaving Atlanta Mary became the bride of Russell Faye and on June 30 the second daughter of the Hiestand family will change her name.

Sally Forth met her fiancé, son of Mrs. James B. Bragassa, at the University of Oklahoma City, where the bride-elect was enrolled for one year. Incidentally, Sally also hears that the former Beverly Rogers, and close friend of Barbara's, who is now Mrs. Bob Lorton, of Oklahoma City, will be one of the attendants in the Hiestand-Bragassa wedding. You remember that it was just about this time last year that Barbara and her fiancé were attendants in the wedding of Beverly and Bob Lorton which was brilliantly solemnized here.

Hemline Is Important for Children as Well as for Grownups

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DESSERTS—THE MENU MENACE.

The carbohydrate climax to the meal makes it hard to reduce and a pleasure to gain. It is astonishing how many calories can cram into an average size portion of a particular delectable dessert.

Now, you take pie—with its average of 100 calories per inch at the circumference. You can see what a worthwhile slice measuring four and one-half inches will do to your waistline! When you top off with 450 excess calories, that's one-tenth of a pound in weight. The addition of cheese or ice cream runs the calorie count up to 650 or 700 calories. On an energy output of 1,800 calories per day, that's enough to keep you going for four hours.

You can have your pie and keep your figure if you exercise enough. We'll ride a bike to burn the extra calories. Suppose you weigh 130 pounds and ride for an hour. You burn 150 calories. There's one-third your pie gone. You'll have to walk, too. You can burn 300 calories in 40 minutes merely by sprinting along at the rate of five miles an hour! Maybe you'd better skip the pie?

The incline toward obesity is sugar-coated.

It begins to look as if the solution is in low-calorie desserts. You will be encouraged to know that the nutritionists have been busy on recipes which are delicious and contain the minimum of calories. Most desserts are concocted of sugar, starch and fat, all of which are high in calories. Fat, however, is the big menace, counting twice as much as sugar or starch. The thing to do, therefore, is to choose desserts low in fat.

You can have cake—either sponge or angel food—for less than 200 calories, which is not excessive for a dessert. The same size piece of chocolate cake would contain 500 calories, thanks to the high fat content of chocolate. By leaving the crust of your pie and eating only the filling, you leave 200 calories on your plate. Pastry is more fattening than the filling, because of the fat used to make the crust crisp and flaky.

Here is a list of desserts fairly low in calories:

Dessert—Quantity	Calories
Floating island, 2-3 cup	200
Gingerbread, 4x2x1 1-8 ins.	200
Cream puff	135
Rice pudding, 1-2 cup	100
Banana custard, 1-2 cup	135
Chocolate blanc mange, 1-2 cup	200
Baked custard, 1-2 cup	135
Sherbet, 1-2 cup	100
Prune whip, 1-2 cup	135
Banana whip, 1-2 cup	100

Of course, desserts cannot add to your weight unless they are in excess of your calorie needs. However, on a low calorie diet it is difficult to balance the menus to include a rich dessert.

Balanced Reducing Menu.

Breakfast—	Calories
Orange juice, 1-2 glass	50
Toast, 2 thin slices	100
Butter, 1-2 pat	50
Coffee, 1 sp. cream, 1 round-ed tsp. sugar	50
Luncheon—	250

No. 44

William and Mary

William, a Dutchman, and Mary, an English subject, resisted ambition. Louis XIV. of France called the "Sun King" because of the splendour of his court at Versailles.

James landed in Ireland and besieged Ulster. Protestants, descendants of Scottish settlers in Londonderry, the people were nearly starving when food ships got through to them. William's army beat James' army at the Battle of the Boyne. Some Ulstermen still call them "The Orange Men" after William.

After a short peace between France and the Allies, war broke out again over Spain. Louis put England against him by saying James' son (the Old Pretender) should be king of England. But then William died. His last act was to recall the Duke of Marlborough when he had dismissed in the earlier war for plotting against him, and gave him command.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday.—There was one point made by Dr. Van Loon in his commencement address to the graduating class of the Todhunter School on Friday, that struck me as particularly good for any graduating class to know. He told them no one could escape the vicissitudes of life. Ups and downs are inevitable, but if you build an inner tower where you gather all the memories you like to dwell with, and into which you can retire when the world around you seems too overwhelming, it will smooth your path in life.

In other words, if you remember James Hilton's book, "Lost Horizon," a "Shangri-La" or land of your own made up of the friends, the experiences, the contacts which make life worth living. One or two of the older people came up to me afterward and said: "The youngsters, no matter how young, seemed to enjoy that talk today and yet there was so much in it we want to remember as well."

I sat with my hands folded on the train to Hyde Park Friday because everything I owned had gone on ahead of me, including my knitting and manuscripts of every kind. It was rather a novel experience not to have my hands busy so I looked out at the beauty of early summer on the Hudson river and, on the whole, it was rather pleasant to think and do nothing.

It is very soothing to watch pictures pass like a panorama. I kept thinking to myself, if this were Spain, would I be sitting so calmly and with such security watching the summer pageant go by? We should count over our blessings now and then, and not the least among them is that no shells are dropping on our cities and villages, that no children in great numbers are being separated from their parents and being cared for in temporary asylums. Some of this suffering can be alleviated, but it is only alleviation and some measure of harm remains unaltered.

If reforms do not come peacefully they have to come through violent upheavals. As I looked out the window of the train, I thought, "Thank God, this nation has had the courage to face the need of changes before we reached the point where bloodshed was the only way to achieve a change."

No wonder the peoples who have democratic forms of government cling to them. If they realize what they are spared, they will work unceasingly to make democracy function properly.

Arrived at Hyde Park, I found that some of the things I wanted to do in my guest house could not be done. But, as is the usual experience of all householders, the work on the house is not as far advanced as I had hoped. However, each time I do a little and some day everything will be in order.

I visited my mother-in-law yesterday and found her very well, though walking is still a slow process. It certainly is a joyous feeling to be in the country. I have almost forgotten how warm Washington was last week and that city streets are just city streets no matter where they are.

Revival of the Constitution

From an eastern suburb a reader writes:

My husband is 75 years old. I am 73. I have what my doctor calls heart muscle failure. We have our dinner in the middle of the day. Will you kindly tell me how long we should wait after dinner before we can take a nap?

From the lady's letter I take it the couple are in comfortable circumstances, free from anxiety, as every man and woman past 60 should be, if ours were a civilized country. I imagine they are not given to overindulgence in food or drink. If that is so, then there is no reason why they should not enjoy a nap at whatever time of day they wish.

It is only folk who eat too fast or too heartily who must not fall asleep immediately after a heavy meal.

I would suggest to this couple the plan of having a light lunch in the middle of the day and the main meal of the day at five, six or seven in the evening, especially in the summer time. Then they should cultivate the habit of taking a constitutional every day, forenoon, afternoon or shortly before the evening meal.

If not accustomed to walking, the lady, with myocardial weakness, heart muscle weakness, should set a moderate pace and cover only a short distance at first, say to the end of the block and back, of course taking friend husband along, or a handsomer man than he is, to keep about it. Gradually this regular dose of exercise should be increased until a daily walk of from one to five miles is enjoyed. As long as there is no breathlessness or undue fatigue after such a walk, the patient with myocardial degeneration or slow heart muscle failure may be sure it is good medicine. Graduated exercise, carefully gauged to suit the present efficiency of the heart, is recognized by all physicians as the best treatment for slow heart muscle failure.

People are again learning to work. Of course it is a dangerous practice nowadays, what with all the morons and near-drunks who are licensed to run wild and then let off with a mild slap on the wrist when they maim or kill people. But in spite of the traffic hazard and the pollution of the air in city canyons with carbon monoxide, ambulation is still the finest recreation any one except the postman can have.

In our town where walking is ideal the year around (except for the traffic hazard) one would walk forenoon, afternoon or evening, a few years ago without seeing any one else afoot except an occasional domestic hurrying to board a bus at the corner. Today the ambulatory population is growing by leaps and bounds. It appears that every one who can afford it now takes a daily constitutional.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: We were once business people in a large city and moved to the country to farm. Like all the rest of our neighbors we have had poor crops, a meager living and nothing for the extras. When the question of a large expenditure comes up as it did yesterday we are thrown into a bad state. I had been suffering for some time with a toothache and when I went to the dentist he told me that if my teeth didn't have immediate attention I would lose them. Naturally, dentists don't work gratis and we have no money so I was desperate. Providentially, it seemed, a neighbor called that day and offered me work which would enable me to have the treatments and pay for them. My daughter says I needn't worry about the house-keeping as she is capable of taking it on, meals and all. But my husband said he wouldn't stand for it and that if I went I had better make it a permanent job. Harmony in the home means much to me and so do my teeth. What ought I to do?

MIN.

Answer: How wise you are and kind! How understanding and forebearing to hear your husband through in a protest against your saving your teeth. What a jewel he has in you and doesn't know it!

Far be it from me to encourage a wife to defy her husband in any reasonable demand he might make of her. But surely this is an unreasonable demand which he cannot justify on any score. If he can't pay for the dental work and can't locate a dental clinic where you can have the work done free of charge, it is outrageously selfish of him to deny you the right to earn the money to pay the bills.

I should say that under these circumstances harmony in the home would be relatively unimportant by comparison with your health and your personal appearance. So long as his meals are prepared, his laundry done, his bed made and his comforts provided he has no kick and no right to question how it's done, or by whom.

Queer for a man to be averse with false pride and have so little of the genuine article! He's unwilling for the neighbors to know his wife is working but he is willing for her to suffer pain and in the end lose her teeth. He forgets that somebody will have to pay for the replacements. He has no conception of feminine vanity but he is all broken out with peacock vanity himself. Vain of his place as head of the family works. Rather than have his ability questioned, he will endanger his wife's health, let her undergo embarrassment far greater than he's willing to undergo and in the end have accomplished nothing but the saving of his false face before the public. Is there any good sportsmanship in that? I think not.

Even Sun Suits Hew to Style Line

FOR DILIGENT DIGGING—These two sun suits, cut from fabrics designed by children, are meant for such arduous undertakings as hide-and-seek and digging in the backyard. The suit at the left is splattered with hat-topped musical instruments. It has circular pieces of fabric, finished with elastic bands, attached to each leg. The other suit shows big fat cats fishing for goldfish—using their tails as hook and line. Its big organdy bow holds the panties in place and adds a dress-up touch.

By JOAN DURHAM.

Associated Press Feature Service Writer.

The Less-Than-Junior Miss is just as fashion-fastidious today as her elders.

Like big sister, she complains when hemlines are too long. Like mother, she objects if waistlines aren't snug.

Socks have to be the right length. Coiffures, too, have to be up-to-the-notion.

So mothers of these budding fashion-plates have learned a few tricks.

Sturdy Fabrics Best. To save laundry and minimize damage done by 12-hour days in the sun they are stocking up with broadcloth, percale and pique dresses and sun suits for their less-than-teen-age daughters.

Broadcloth for its wear-proof quality. Percale because it is light-er in weight and not so expensive. And pique because it is sturdy and wrinkle-free.

Romper-Type Panties. One of the latest sun suits has circular pieces of fabric attached to the leg of the shorts and is finished at the hem with an elastic band. The result is a garment much like the rompers designed for very young children—which eliminates the necessity of panties in very warm weather.

Another has an overall strap across the back underneath which a perky organdy bow serves the double purpose of holding the panties in place and adding a somewhat dress-up touch.

Organdy for Parties. For parties there are organdy and linen frocks. Mousseline de soie dresses may be worn on such august occasions as weddings.

Because batiste is cooler than nearly any other material, panties and matching slips of that fabric are being sold almost universally by better shops. In some instances they give way to mercerized cotton or silk.

This year's under-twelve made-moiselle insists on a hemline at least two inches above the knee. When she is 13 or 14, perhaps she will let it be lowered just below her knee. But for the time being the shorter her frocks the better.

Half-socks, too, are out of the very young picture. They have given way to socks that are strictly ankle-length. And they come in light and bright colors—to contrast with the darker shades worn all winter.

Wide-Brimmed Leghorns. The wide-brimmed leghorn hat with the schoolgirl streamer down the back is important millinery news. Scotch kiltie hats, not as popular now as they have been, are still considered quite smart.

And there are some berets—with little rolled edges instead of those that tuck under.

Pigtails are in a class by themselves. There is nothing smarter for the young lady whose hair isn't curly enough to do up at night.

Curls are far from becoming ostracized, however.

In both cases the hair should be brushed back from the face and neatly pinned or tied in place. Loose ends and bangs are very much taboo.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN.

Let the windows "breathe" in summer.

The very thought of dark damask and homespun positively runs up our temperature during the days of June and roses. Because now we yearn to see and to see through our windows! So we've yielded to that uncontrollable urge to swish away all our winter draperies and let our windows breathe. And we've been gleaming ideas for this very process, ideas to make summer windows perk up and let in the sun and balmy fresh air.

From the Garden.

For the inveterate gardener, fresh flowers as a part of a window decoration are effective—a changing floral pattern with the changing blooms of the garden. Fresh, crisp white organdy curtains for the bedroom maybe, then just at the point of the tie backs glass flower holders—the sort we used to see in quaint old ladies' limousines and "electrics." The holders could be kept filled with painted daisies, or the heavenly blue corn flowers, or droopingly elegant petunias. Fresh flowers have a way of fitting in so many places, so for summer we needn't worry too much about colors to match if it would be handy. We might even surprise ourselves at the odd and interesting color combinations we could achieve here in this not too important place.

Fabric Window Shades. Colored and figured window shades are another answer to the question of bringing color into summer rooms, and if the shades are of a dependable fine fabric, they're decorative assets to sheer curtains. A lovely larkspur blue in window shades will do a lot for a room when winter draperies have been hung away in the attic. Shades made of gingham for the kitchen (which we could make ourselves) would eliminate summer launderings and will give a cool, crisp look to a workroom. It's not a bad idea to dispense with heavy hangings in children's rooms for the summer either, substituting something novel in glass curtains over shades made of glazed chintz in gay nursery patterns to dress up windows effectively.

Vols Overcome Six-Run Lead To Defeat Crackers, 8 to 6

BREAK O'DAY!

By Ralph McGill

"Bobby Jones' ball player" is causing no end of woe in the baseball circles in Tenn-O-Se.

And who is Bobby Jones' ball player? Why, Charles (Buster) Chatham, the hustling, bustling ball player in our league. And shortstop for the Cracker nine.

In 1932 the Crackers were one jump ahead of the sheriff and the sheriff was gaining.

The "13 millionaires" were called into action and as a matter of civic pride took over the financing of the Crackers for that season.

They took an undesired financial and publicity beating. But that is another story.

The ball club was kept going that year by donations of funds, some of which they never got back.

They needed a ball player one day. They needed several. But this day they just had to have one. And so Bobby Jones, the golfer, who was stuck along with the rest of the directors, ear-marked a few thousand dollars of his own money to buy a ball player.

The player they bought was Buster Chatham.

It was the lone act of the 1932 organization which proved to be a sound one. The club was too far gone for the directors to rescue it and so it was taken over, in default of debt, by the present owners. That, too, is another story of what efficient management did.

Back in those days they referred to the new shortstop as "Bobby Jones' ball player."

A lot of people claim him now.

The curious thing is that a couple of seasons ago a few people were saying Charles (Buster) Chatham would be replaced. All he did was come back with the greatest year of his career. He followed that with another one last year and this season is off again, as the sun gets warm and his legs and arms respond.

He's the best shortstop in the league and a very valuable team man.

And his batting average is going to rise with the thermometer.

He hit a home run with two on in Saturday's game with Chattanooga and yesterday drove out another home run with two on in the game with those Nashville Vols.

WHY PITCHING ARMS FAIL

Down through the years the baseball people have argued about what happens when a pitcher's arm "goes."

The arm and all its muscles still are there. But the pitcher can't throw the ball with any sing.

Yesterday a medical doctor, as the boys say, supplied what seems to be the answer.

The arm literally does "wear out."

"The pitcher's arm," said the medical doctor, "develops the pitching muscles beyond the ordinary size. They demand, when in use, a larger supply of blood to supply the foods of oxidation."

"At last the muscles fail to receive as much blood as required. Some of the muscle cells break down and the result is a small bit of scar tissue. As this continues the muscle deteriorates until at last it no longer is effective. The presence of scar tissue ruins the muscle."

That makes up the first intelligent explanation of what happens to pitching arms. The old ideas that the muscles "stretched" or "gave out," never did constitute a reasonable theory.

STILL A MYSTERY.

There is another baseball mystery which defies explanation. Bill Dietrich, of the Chicago White Sox, recently pitched a no-hit ball game.

He will do as the subject. Dietrich is, according to all reports, wild. He works hard but he lacks control. He is, or was, just an ordinary major league pitcher. And then, for one day, his control became perfect. He was able to put the ball where he wanted it. It obeyed all his wishes.

What happens to experienced pitchers that on one day they pitch good baseball, showing control and curves that break sharply and a fast ball that sings—and on another day have nothing at all?

Pitchers go right along for four or five games and then

ERNEST SUTTER ROMPS IN FIRST SOUTHERN TEST

Defending Champ Beats York, 6-0, 6-1; Cooke Forced To Withdraw.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—Twenty-year-old Ernest Sutter breezed through D. L. York, of Nashville, in straight sets today in a first-round match to begin the defense of his southern amateur tennis championship on the Belle Meade courts.

Sutter's margin was 6-0, 6-1, and was little more decisive than the victories of other seeded stars who joined him in the second round.

Joe Hunt, blond Californian, and seeded second behind Bobby Riggs, tuned up his strokes for the title battle with an exhibition match against Nashville's Joe Davis, national interscholastic champion.

Davis won the first set, 7-9, dropping the second to Hunt, 6-6, in a spine-tingling display of shots. Hunt hopes to annex the Dixie title which his father, W. G. Hunt, won in 1906.

Riggs and Walter Senior, seeded fourth, and another Californian, did not see action today, but will engage in their initial match tomorrow, as will Hunt.

Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., seeded third, advanced as was expected with an easy 6-3, 6-0 deviation over Leland Richter, of Nashville.

Sixth seeded Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., withdrew today from the event after his physician advised him to remain in bed 36 hours to recuperate from a fever. His withdrawal advanced John Hendrix, brother of Art, to the second round without playing.

Frank Guernsey, the Orlando (Fla.) sharpshooter, ranked seventh, escorted Jack Bushman, of St. Petersburg, to the sidelines by a 6-4, 6-4 margin, and Merrimon Cuninggim, of Nashville, seeded eighth, eliminated Evans Howell, another home-town entrant, 6-2, 6-1.

Competition in the women's singles, with Evangeline Mac Lennan, of Atlanta, favored, will begin tomorrow.

Results included: Glenn Wilson, of Orlando, Fla., defeated M. T. Bush, of Nashville, 6-4, 6-4; Jimmy Dodd, of Nashville, defeated Nathan Woodruff, of Nashville, 6-1, 6-3; Bill Hardie, of Miami and Atlanta, defeated Guilford Dudley, of Nashville, 6-1, 6-2.

Jack Mooney, of Atlanta, defeated Randall Jarrell, of Nashville, 6-1, 6-2; Dan Ross, of Clarksville, Tenn., defeated Overton Thompson, of Nashville, 6-3, 6-4.

Dickie Dunlap, of Paris, Tenn., defeated Frank Barnes, of Nashville, 6-1, 6-1.

W. B. Marcum Jr., of Lakeland, Fla., defeated Long Musson, of New Orleans, 6-4, 6-0; Billy Westfield, of New Orleans, defeated Russell Cooley, of Clarksville, Tenn., 6-1, 6-3.

Marvin Bacon, of Nashville, defeated Charles Jenkins, of Nashville, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

T. T. Jackson, Nashville, defaulted to Ken Cram, Nashville.

Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., defeated Leland Richter, Nashville, 6-3, 6-0; George Pero, Miami, defeated Don Doyle, New Orleans, 7-5, 6-1.

Merrimon Cuninggim, Nashville, defeated Evans Howell, Nashville, 6-3, 6-1; Elaine Robinson, Nashville, defaulted to Tate Huggins, Nashville.

Bennie Frank, Miami, defeated John Hyden, Nashville, 6-3, 6-1; Dickie Dunlap, Paris, Tenn., 6-2, 6-3; George Pero, another Miami, trounced Don Doyle, Tulane University entrant, 7-5, 6-1.

Joe Folk, of Nashville, defeated George Roe, of Paris, 6-1, 6-2; Dan Ross, of Clarksville, Tenn., erased Overton Thompson, of Nashville, 6-3, 6-4.

Sawane No. 1, and 3 men, Hugh Shelton and Alex Guerry Jr., likewise advanced to the second round.

Columbia, Tenn., boy, eliminated Bob Alexander, of Nashville, 6-2, 6-3; and Jerry of Chattanooga, trimmed Bobby Blum, Nashville, 6-2, 6-0.

Vernon Marcum, of Lakeland, Fla., displayed a balanced attack to rout Jerry Whitson, of Cookeville, Tenn., 6-2, 6-1.

Bill Boyer, of Johnson City, defaulted to Tom Anderson, of Nashville, and Kimmark Peterson had too many strokes for Glenn Wilson, of Orlando, Fla., 6-0, 14-6-0.

Campbell Gillespie, of Atlanta, eliminated James Vullie, of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-4, 6-1.

Buford, Canton Clash Tonight

Buford, Ga., June 7.—North Georgia will see its first night baseball game at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night when Buford's Shoemakers, runner-up in the national semi-pro tournament last year, plays Canton's Cherokee Indians.

Last year Buford set a new world's winning streak for semi-pro teams with something over 35 straight and then went on to be the dark horse in the national tourney, losing only in the final game.

The Shoemakers have been slow to get away this year, losing a majority of the April games, but recently have shown a decided improvement and won most of the games in the past three weeks.

Warren and Dixsteel, two of Atlanta's strongest amateur teams, were taken three out of four games, along with a number of good teams in the Chattahoochee Valley league.

Lefty Gene Nix or Cleo Jeter are most likely to be Manager Jake Smith's hurling selection for the opening night game.

To Be or Not To Be---That Is the Question

The melancholy Vol pictured above is Lance Richbourg, manager and one of the finer players in baseball. He arrived yesterday with his team and took a stirring battle from the Crackers, who blew a six-run lead. The melancholy Vol looked more cheerful at the close of the game, which the Vols won, 8 to 6.

BELCHER, TOWNS, PACKARD TO RUN

Tech, Georgia Stars Selected for National Collegiate Meet.

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—A total of 111 athletes from 43 colleges and universities was selected today to compete in the National Collegiate track and field championships June 18 and 19 at the University of California, Berkeley. Announcement of the list was made by K. L. (Tug) Wilson, Northwestern University athletic director and chairman of the N. C. A. selection committee.

The athletes were picked on the basis of their performances during the last season and will have their transportation paid to and from the meet. Wilson said other athletes may enter and should they place, also will have their transportation paid.

The University of Southern California led all schools with 10 men. Stanford was second with eight, with Indiana and Michigan tying for third with five each.

Thirteen members of the United States Olympic team are on the list. Among them is Forrest (Spec) Towns, of Georgia.

The stars selected include: 100-220-yard dashes—Robert Packard, Georgia.

440-Yard Run—Charles Belcher, Georgia Tech.

High and Low Hurdles—Forrest Towns, Georgia.

Javelin—John Karakash, Duke.

Fracture Is Found In Lindsey's Thumb

An X-ray yesterday revealed that Jim Lindsey has a fractured right thumb.

The veteran Cracker right-hander, who has been poised to the Nashville Vols since he has been in the league, will not be available for the current series.

Lindsey hurt his thumb trying to stop a line drive off the bat of McFarland in last Friday night's game against Chattanooga.

He pitched three innings after that with a fractured thumb. The hand continued to bother him and yesterday an X-ray revealed a separation of the bones. Lindsey will be out for a week or more.

Richbourg Sees Vols And Crackers in Race

Nashville Manager Once Member of League's Greatest Outfield With Cuyler and "Bevo."

By RALPH MCGILL. Lance Richbourg, who checked in yesterday with his battered Vols to play the battling Crackers, had a major league career somewhat stymied by ill luck.

He arrived in the Southern league in 1923 and made up what probably was the finest outfield the Southern league ever saw. That was Kiki Cuyler, Lance Richbourg and Bevo Lebourveau.

That was at Nashville. And the Vols were heading for the pennant when, in a series at Chattanooga, Richbourg slid into third base and broke a leg.

That broke the Vols. They headed away from that pennant. Richbourg went on to the majors and had a successful career there, but other injuries handicapped him.

HERE WITH VOLS. He is here with a ball club which is in much the same shape as the Crackers—the pitchers can't hold the leads they get.

The Vols have proved the real disappointment of the race thus far and the pitchers have been the reason for the failure. Pitching is 75 per cent of baseball. And that's why the Crackers and the Vols haven't been in the race as expected.

Richbourg thinks the Vols are the Crackers will be back in the race.

BOTH IN RACE. "There is plenty of time but neither club can afford to wait long," he said. "We've both had injuries, lost pitchers and been unlucky. But no club is too far away from Memphis and Little Rock not to be able to catch them with a good spurt."

Richbourg is one of the finest men in baseball, a credit to himself and the game.

SLOW PROGRESS. Meanwhile, the Crackers keep going along, making progress slowly but surely. The defeat of yesterday, in which they blew a six-run lead, was disappointing. It was another evidence of unstable pitching.

The pitchers will be hard pressed in this series with a night game scheduled tonight and a double-header set for Wednesday afternoon.

And with two clubs that hit poor pitching with great gusto, the series should provide enough excitement for one and all.

BACK IN BASEBALL. SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 7.—(AP)—Sad Sam Gray, American league pitcher for 11 years with Philadelphia and St. Louis, was back in baseball today as manager of the Iranian team of the Persian Basin league.

Chatham, Chapman Clout Home Runs

By JACK TROY.

The word has been passed around our own that the "nine old men" were here wearing the uniforms of the Nashville Vols. And for five innings yesterday, it appeared that informants were eminently correct. For they hit only four balls out of the infield off the pitching of Bobby Durham.

Starting with the sixth, however, they were the Vols of old and Durham was engulfed in that well-known maelstrom of maul.

The Vols went to work, erased a six-run lead the Crackers had given Durham, continued their slugging in the seventh and defeated those noble lads, 8 to 6, in the opening game of the series. Durham, working fast, was invincible for the first five innings. The Vols went down in order.

The first Vol reached first base in the sixth. But after that there was a parade. And Durham was left in there to lead it.

OUTSTANDING BUSTER CHATHAM

The Crackers got off to an early three-run lead. In the second inning, Eddie Rose singled, Emil Mailho doubled and Jim Galvin drove a triple over Stu Hofferth's head in left to score them both. Then Galvin scored on a wild pitch by Jack Lamb.

Buster Chatham's homer inside the park accounted for three more. Continued on Third Sports Page.

Tigers Trim Yankees Again, 4-3; Giants Defeat Pirates, 5-2

ROOKIE WADE BESTS GOMEZ IN TIGHT DUEL

Chisox Win 9th Straight; Indians Wallop Nats, 17-5.

DETROIT, June 7.—(AP)—Jake Wade, rookie pitcher for the Tigers, today won a 4-3 decision over the Yankees' Lefty Gomez in the three-game series. Hank Greenberg aided Wade, who struck out nine men to 11 for his veteran rival with a homer, his fourteenth of the year, in the sixth with a man on base.

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—The rampant Chicago White Sox stretched their winning streak to nine straight games today by battering George Turbeville and Al Williams from the mound in a seven-run fifth-inning and sweeping the four-game series from the Philadelphia Athletics, 12 to 6. Wally Moses' sixth homer accounted for two Philadelphia runs.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 7.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians smothered Joe Casarella and Ed Linke for 15 hits today to defeat Washington, 10 to 7. Earl Averill, Cleveland center fielder, knocked out his sixth homer of the season in the third inning with two on base.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns broke even in a four-game series with the Boston Red Sox by winning today, 9 to 6. Harold Clift, of the Browns, hit a home run in the seventh with Beau Bell on base.

ARKANSAS COACH SIGNS NEW PACT

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., June 7.—(AP)—Coach Fred C. Thomsen, who piloted the University of Arkansas Razorbacks to a Southwestern conference football championship last fall, received a new three-year contract today from the school. The coach announced at the same time plans are under way to develop a school of physical education at the college. The school of physical education would be developed along lines used in other universities. Graduates would be equipped for coaching and instructional positions. Terms of Thomsen's new coaching contract were not made public. Trustees of the school declined to indicate whether he had received an increase as result of his championship work last year. The Porker coach starred as a player at the University of Nebraska and came to the university here, in 1927 as assistant coach and became head coach the following year.

'Bo' McMullin Gets Diploma at Centre

D'ANVILLE, Ky., June 7.—(AP)—A. N. "Bo" McMullin, head football coach of Indiana University, received his diploma today from Centre College, which he left in his senior year, 1922, to take a coaching post at Centenary College, Shreveport, La. After leaving Centre, which he helped make famous as an All-American member of the "Praying Colonels" football team, McMullin completed his bachelor of arts work at Kansas State University, where he later coached, and at Indiana University.

Two Pro Grid Loops For Atlantic Sector

RICHMOND, Va., June 7.—(AP)—The middle Atlantic area will embrace two professional football leagues next fall if plans now being made are carried out. The Dixie Pro League, which operated with six club last year, met in Washington yesterday and tentatively adopted a schedule opening October 3. Eleven were promised from Washington, Baltimore, Alexandria, Richmond, Norfolk and Portsmouth. Play will continue each Sunday through December the 12th.

German Net Stars Gain Semi-Finals

MILAN, June 7.—(UP)—Germany reached the semifinal round of Davis cup tennis competition today when Henner Henkel defeated Vanni Campele, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4. Germany split the opening singles matches and won one doubles match. This reduced the final match, Baron Gottfried von Cramm vs. Georgia De Stefani, to an exhibition status. Von Cramm won, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

MEN PAST 40

Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 10 to 15 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality. This hormone is now available together with other valuable ingredients in 30-day bottles—30c. MOULTREE 3; ALBANY 4.
 ALBANY, Ga., June 7.—Overcoming a three-run deficit in the eighth with a walk and home run by Esser and Manager Rice to tie the score, the Albany Travelers touched Relieving Pitcher Smith for a double and two singles to push over the winning run in the ninth and defeat the Moultrie Packers here today.

Puckett, Moultrie's starting moundman, hurled four-hit ball for seven innings, only to be replaced when Albany men poked successive circuit clouts. Puckett struck out 8 men while Vargo, for Moultrie, whiffed 9.

LOSS IS BUCS' FIFTH STRAIGHT; DODGERS WIN

Woody English's Tenth-Inning Single Defeats Reds, 5 to 4.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Striking a vital blow in his own cause with a home run into the lower right-field stands, Harry Gumbert, the Giants' young right-hander, today set back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2, to widen the New Yorkers' first-place margin to a game and a half over the Cubs and two games over the Buccaners.

The defeat was the fifth straight for the Pirates, who have been defeated in their last six clashes with Bill Terry's league leaders.

Having swept the series with the Pirates, the Giants tomorrow meet the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of a three-game set.

BROOKLYN, June 7.—(AP)—Woody English's tenth-inning double that brought in Luke Hamlin, running for Babe Phelps, today gave the Dodgers the deciding run in a 5-4 defeat of the Cincinnati Reds. The triumph was the second of the year for pint-sized Roy Henshaw, who went the route, gave up seven hits and struck out 10 men.

Snark Wins Second Big Race of Season
 NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—The Wheatley stable's Snark won his second big stake of the Metropolitan racing season today as he breezed home ahead of a strong field in the 32d Queen's County Handicap, mile feature of the opening day program at Aqueduct. The four-year-old son of Boop-um, owned by Mrs. H. C. Phipps and Ogden Mills, backed into 12-to-5 favoritism by the crowd of 10,000, galloped in five lengths ahead of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Memory Book.

Black Crackers Play Barons Night Game

The Atlanta Black Crackers will play their first night game Thursday at Fonce de Leon park against the Birmingham Black Barons. The Barons are rated above the Jacksonville Red Caps since they defeated Jacksonville a few weeks ago.

The Black Crackers have had a few sore arms in their pitching staff but Manager Armond Leonard Sampson said that his staff was in good condition and that his nine would give the visitors plenty of competition. Red Hadley is back in the lineup and that will add much strength to the club. Birmingham and Atlanta always put up a good fight on the diamond. Atlanta won last year's series.

Maxwell Appointed To Semi-Pro Post

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 7.—(AP) Early Maxwell, promotion director for the Commercial Appeal, received today an appointment as Tennessee commissioner of semi-pro baseball. The appointment bore the approval of J. Honus Wagner, high commissioner of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress.

The congress is sanctioning a series of 48-state semi-pro tournaments, culminating in the national finals at Wichita, Kan., August 13-25.

Mrs. Si Johnson Gets A 66-Pound Tarpon

VENICE, Fla., June 7.—(AP) Mrs. Si Johnson, wife of the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, landed her first tarpon here today. It weighed 66 pounds. Mrs. "Dizzo" Dean hooked a big one yesterday but it shook the hook from its mouth after a 20-minute fight.

Feller Can Pitch Soon, Says Doctor
 MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 7.—(AP)—Bob Feller, youthful pitcher of the Cleveland baseball club who has been bothered by a sore arm since April 24, will be able to hurl a regular game within a week, F. B. Ohm, who treated him last week, said today.

BRADDOCK, NOW 31, IS IN SHAPE IN BRITISH MEET

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—James J. Braddock, at an age when most athletes ignore birthdays, declared an open holiday today to commemorate the thirty-first anniversary of his birth.

With a party of 15 friends, he motored to the Washington Park race track from the training camp at Grand Beach, Mich., to do some shadow boxing with the thoroughbreds. Braddock presented the winning jockey of the sixth race with a pair of autographed boxing gloves, and another pair went to the trainer of the winning horse.

The day was "Braddock day" at the horse track, and he was the guest of honor. With his battle with Joe Louis just two weeks from tomorrow night, this was his last day away from his training camp. The heavyweight king claims to be in far better condition than when he lifted the crown from Max Baer two years ago in his last fight. He will golf Tuesday and Wednesday take a light boxing workout.

IT TAKES PRETTY GOOD JUDGMENT to hold down a sheriff's job. So when this sheriff, Hiram Lawrence, praises Prince Albert for "makin's" cigarettes, roll-your-owners can well afford to sit up and take notice. Here's Sheriff Lawrence (the one standing in the middle) rolling a Prince Albert cigarette with Doc Shackelford (left) and J. T. Lawrence (right). They're also enthusiastic boosters for that mild-tasting, smooth-smoking Prince Albert "makin's" tobacco.

DR. SHACKELFORD speaking. Says he: "Yes, sheriff, I guess 'most all us 'makin's smokers go for Prince Albert's full, rich body. It's right tasty 'makin's and right mellow, too. I've been rolling Prince Albert for going on 8 years now. Guess that beats your record, eh, sheriff?"

"Not by a long shot!" says Sheriff Lawrence. "I've been rolling P. A. now for 12 years, and it hasn't bit my tongue yet. It rolls up quick and neat—draws easy and cool."

PRINCE ALBERT MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
 Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. ## Atmosphere of Lethargy Prevails as Volume Is Lightest in 2 Years.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(P)—An atmosphere of lethargy overhung the Curb exchange today with the majority of issues offering fractions to three points on the smallest volume in nearly two years.

Niles - Belmont - Pond, which staged an upward surge last week, fell away three points to close at 52. Newmont Mining sagged a point, closing at 104. Aluminum Company lost 1-1/2 to 145.

Others displaying dragging tendencies were International Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, Panepet Oil, American Gas & Electric and Cities Service.

Eight Puerto Rican Conspirators En Route Here To Serve Jail Term

Heavily-Guarded Nationalists Convicted of Conspiracy To Overthrow U. S. Government on Island; Planes Being Used for Journey.

Heavily shackled and guarded by a United States marshal and five deputies, eight Puerto Rican nationalists were en route here early this morning on a chartered plane to serve terms in the federal penitentiary for conspiring to overthrow the United States government on the island.

The men, among them Pedro Albizu Campos, president of the Nationalist party, shouted "Viva Republica" as they boarded the special plane yesterday morning at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Only United States officials and police were admitted to the airport before the plane's departure at 5:45 a. m.

Campos, a one-time Harvard University student, and Luis Velasquez, were sentenced to 10 years each. They were found guilty of attempting to overthrow the government by force, fomenting violence and trying to recruit an army of independence.

The United States supreme court refused to hear an appeal from the district court's conviction of last July 31.

The prisoners were removed from the Puerto Rican plane at Miami, Fla., herded into a patrol wagon and taken to Miami's skyscraper jail. They remained there until they were placed aboard a night plane for Atlanta.

Curry said he worked at a schoolhouse as cleanup boy for $6 a month and had just collected his earnings for the past month when he met up with a fellow.

"He told me he could get me a good job at $9 a week in the Candler building," said the boy, "if I'd give him $7. I told him I didn't have but $6 and he said he'd put in the other dollar because I looked like a good boy and he wanted to help me."

The man closed his fingers on Jesse's roll, stepped on an elevator in the old postoffice, saying he'd be back as soon as he talked to "the boss" and got the job fixed up.

"I won't be but a few minutes," Jesse said the man told him.

Jesse waited and waited and probably would be waiting yet if some sympathetic white men had not told him he had been fleeced by a well-known film-flam game.

He told Oscar P. Alderman, secretary to Postmaster Lon Livingston, he had been "paying on a bicycle" with his earnings at the school and that yesterday's experience kind of "messed up" his business.

ALARM PURCHASE IS OFFERED CITY

Police Burglar System Is Sought by A. D. T.

Purchase of the burglar alarm system at the police station was offered yesterday to members of the police committee by J. L. Husman, vice president of American District Telegraph, New York.

He offered $4,100 for his company, and said the city must pay $2,002 it still owes on the board.

According to figures he cited, the municipality is now breaking even in the alarm undertaking, but he pointed out that many repairs are needed.

There were 2,452 calls over the police system so far this year, he said, and 2,200 of them were false alarms.

Husman was asked to file an offer for further study by the committee.

Invitation to Picnic Given Atlanta Blind

The blind of Atlanta have been invited to a picnic at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon on the grounds of the Kriegerhiser Memorial Lighthouse, with the Friendly Club as hosts.

Miss Hetty Higginbotham, president of the club, stated that all blind adults, those with defective vision, and their friends will be welcome.

In event of rain, activity will be transferred to the recreation room. Games, contests, music and refreshments will feature the program.

Anyone desiring transportation may call Mrs. W. N. Adams, Dearborn 2981.

FOREST M. BRYANT LAST RITES TODAY

East Point Youth Died in Florida.

Final rites for Forest M. (Scottie) Bryant, 21, of 510 West Washington avenue, East Point, coast guardsman, who a jury said committed suicide Saturday night at Fort Pierce, Fla., will be held at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the chapel of Howard L. Carmichael, with the Rev. W. A. Duncan and the Rev. R. C. Cleckler officiating. Burial will be in College Park cemetery.

Before committing suicide, according to reports, Bryant shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Ovida C. Gibbons, 20. Mrs. Gibbons died of two pistol shot wounds. A coroner's jury Sunday returned a verdict of suicide following an inquest on Bryant's death.

The shooting was said to have occurred after a quarrel as the couple sat in a car at Fort Pierce Saturday night. Mrs. Gibbons was estranged from her husband and a divorce was pending, it was reported.

Bryant is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bryant; three sisters, Mrs. Marie Gresham, Mrs. W. J. McConnell and Miss Doris Bryant, and three brothers, Fain and Robert Ray Bryant, both of East Point, and J. C. Bryant Jr., of San Diego.
